

THREATS SENT TO KING GEORGE

MANY LOWELL CASES DISPOSED OF IN CRIMINAL SESSION OF THE SUPERIOR COURT OPENED IN THIS CITY THIS MORNING

The March sitting of criminal session of superior court was held at the court house this morning at 10 o'clock. Judge F. H. Chase presided.

Edward Gray, aged 17, pleaded guilty to breaking and entering. He was placed on probation.

Joseph Haincourt, charged with drunkenness, was committed to the Lowell jail for the term of three months.

Harvey W. Burnett, charged with breaking and entering on three counts, was sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory.

James G. Stark, charged with drunkenness, was sentenced to the state farm at Bridgewater.

John P. Buckley, charged with drunkenness, was placed on probation.

The case of George H. Douglas, a last year case, was continued until the June sitting of superior court.

Max Bernstein, charged with stealing what would make up the stock and fixtures of a whole grocery store was held in the sum of $5000 to appear before the court at a future date.

James L. Banfield, John F. Kirwin and Michael J. Sayers, all charged with drunkenness, were ordered on probation.

Herbert J. Merrill, aged 23, was charged with breaking and entering, his case being ordered continued until the June sitting of superior court.

James P. Boyle, charged with drunkenness, was sentenced to the state farm at Bridgewater.

The case of Julia Daley, drunkenness, was placed on file.

The case of Rose Willette, charged with drunkenness, was continued until the June sitting.

Lewis Whipple, charged with non-support of his wife was committed to the Lowell jail for the term of four months.

The case of Mary Hurley was continued until tomorrow.

The jurors were sworn in by Clerk Ralph N. Smith and Wesley M. Wilder was appointed foreman of the jury. These jurors were then dismissed until the afternoon session, which opened at 2 o'clock.

The case of Thomas J. Burns and Martin P. Dunn, charged with breaking and entering the room of Alfred Dube situated in the lodging house of Mrs. Morin, 228 Central street, and the larceny of a pair of cuff buttons, a plus and other articles, the whole value being less than $100, on the afternoon of Feb. 13, 1913 was taken up.

Alfred Dube was the first witness and he stated that he left his room locked on the above afternoon but on returning from work, he found the door unlocked. After missing the above articles and finding his clothes ransacked he notified the landlady who immediately notified the police. He also testified that a man named Mr. Osman saw Burns enter his room and stay for a period of about five minutes.

A daughter of the landlady testified that she opened the door and admitted Burns to the house on the afternoon of Feb. 13 but she could not identify the other man as Dunn.

Precautions Against Suffragettes. LONDON, March 10.—In connection with the opening of the new session of the British parliament by King George, this afternoon special precautions were taken to prevent interference by militant suffragettes on their male supporters.

The time honored ceremony known as searching the vaults, beneath the house of commons and the House of lords, which has been carried out on each opening day of a parliament since the attempt by Guy Fawkes in November, 1605, to blow up the king and all the members of parliament but which in later years has been performed in a perfunctory manner, was again undertaken seriously this morning.

A party of yeomen of the guard from the tower of London, who are better known under the name of "beef-eaters" and who usually perambulate leisurely through the buildings were today accompanied by one of the chief officials of parliament and the house of commons and other high functionaries who made a thorough search for any lurking suffragettes or suffragists.

Threats to Create Scene. The greatest care, too, was taken in issuing tickets to ladies for the ceremony of the opening, which takes place in the house of lords. Threats had been made to create a scene when the king arrived to read his speech from the throne.

The lord chamberlain who issued the invitations sent with them a note stating that it was to be distinctly understood that the recipient of the ticket of admission accepted the fullest responsibility for the lady or gentleman presenting it and that the name must be written on it.

Along the line of route from Buckingham palace to Westminster bridge and the house of parliament to which King George and Queen Mary drove in a gilded state carriage drawn by their brilliant equipment, strong forces of mounted and foot police and men in plain clothes were stationed to prevent the occurrence of any outrage.

Gilded Glass Coach. The opening was preceded by the familiar procession from Buckingham palace to Westminster hall, the center of the brilliant picture being occupied by the great gilded glass coach drawn by the famous Hanoverian cream colored horses, whose sole duty is to participate in these pageants.

A drizzling rain fell throughout the day but this had no effect on the tens of thousands of sightseers who lined the route in dense masses and kept up a wave of cheering calculated to act as a deterrent to anyone who might have had the intention of marring the function.

Talked on Balkan War. The king's speech from the throne was devoted chiefly to steps which had been taken to bring the Balkan war to an end and to the expression of the desire of the European powers to hasten the conclusion of peace.

His majesty opened with a graceful reference to the jubilee of the marriage of his parents, King Edward VII, and Queen Alexandra and to his gratitude for the affection shown by the nation to the widowed queen mother. The portion of the speech dealing with the war emphasized the fact that all the great powers earnestly desire to prevent hostilities from spreading and to see the fighting terminated as soon as possible.

Actions of British Doubtless. His majesty made a pleasant reference to the action of the British dominions who had contributed war vessels to the British navy and also to the visits of Robert L. Borden, the Canadian premier and other overseas ministers to confer with the imperial ministers, which acts, he said, were calculated to promote the solidarity of the empire.

"The discussions now proceeding in the Canadian parliament on matters of defense testify to the universal desire within the empire for the maintenance of the common safety."

Home Rule Bill Introduced. The forthcoming appropriations were the subjects for merely passing mention. Nothing was said to indicate whether those of the navy and the army were to be formally swollen. The forecast of them to be introduced was restricted to narrow limits. Apart from the introduction of the Home Rule and Welsh disestablishment bills the only important measures will be additional facilitation of land purchase in Ireland, the guaranty of a Soudan loan for the development of cotton growing there, a bill to prevent plural voting at elections and a measure for the development of a national system of education.

Women Waved Papers. The only sign of suffragettes during the royal procession was seen when two women rushed from St. James park opposite Marlborough house while the royal coach was passing and vigorously waved papers. They were promptly surrounded by police and hustled from the spot.

Considerable excitement ensued. The crowd was strongly hostile to the women, who had to be protected by the police against the howling mob, which wanted to mete out immediate punishment.

The names of the five arrested women are: Lillian Wilcox, Dorothy Smith, Kathleen Packer, Gertrude Vaughan and Grace Stuart. Each of them was armed with a rolled up petition setting forth the grievances of women.

burn street and Zolisa Kakosel, 23, spinner, same address.

CHICAGO, March 10.—James Simpson, vice president of Marshall Field & Co., was recalled to the witness chair before the state vice commission today. The room was again filled; the spectators being, largely women. Simpson was again questioned about the profits of his firm and again asked to be excused from answering. He assumed the commission that Marshall Field & Co. could well subscribe to any minimum wage law for women which might be adopted.

"It is inevitable," he said, "that any increases would be paid by the public."

Senator Tansy asked if Marshall Field & Co. could raise the minimum wage to $2 a day without raising prices of goods to the consumer.

"It could be done," Simpson said.

George Lytleton, vice president of "The Hub," next faced the commission with his back to the spectators.

Lieut. Gov. J. J. O'Hara, chairman of the commission, explained that the commission desired to ascertain the relation of low wages to immorality among women.

Lytleton said that it was the practice of "The Hub" to give annual presents to its employees. He asked to be excused from telling what percentage of the net profits of the firm the gifts formed.

"The Hub" employs 150 women, none of whom receives less than $6.30 a week.

"Do you believe it is good policy to pay good wages?" asked Chairman O'Hara.

"Yes," was the answer.

"There are 101 women at 'The Hub,' receiving $5.50. It has been estimated that it costs eight or nine dollars to maintain a young woman," said Senator Junt, "where does the difference come from?"

"They live at home and it comes from the parents."

"Then you take all the girl's time and skill and expect her parents to help pay her wages?" pursued Mr. Junt.

"We have been considering raising the minimum wage to $5."

Witness said he had devoted much time to the wage question as it affects women and that a woman can live on $5 a week. He promised to give the commission a schedule of the expenses of a working girl.

"What we want," said Senator Junt, "is what she must spend. Never mind the pleasures. I suppose when we make a law, we'll have to add a dollar or two for recreation and the like."

"The Hub," besides its gifts, has a pension fund and sick benefits.

Major Gets "Black Hand" Letter. QUINCY, Mass., March 10.—Major Eugene Stone received today the sixth "black hand" letter that has been sent to him within three months.

The letter threatened the executive with death unless he removed from office a police inspector and a court official. All the letters have been turned over to the police. A handwriting expert who examined them reported that in his opinion all were written by one person.

GLASGOW, Scotland, March 10.—A terrible dynamite explosion today killed many inhabitants of Irvine, in Ayrshire and injured hundreds of others as well as virtually wrecking the town itself.

The explosion occurred at Nobel's explosive works at Arder, a little over 20 miles from Glasgow.

The town of Irvine was shaken to its foundations. Many houses, churches, schools and public institutions were irretrievably damaged. Cellars fell everywhere, partitions collapsed, and scarcely a window was left intact.

People walking on the streets were thrown to the ground and all the inhabitants rushed from their houses in consternation.

The harbor and many works adjacent to the scene of the explosion were masses of wreckage.

There were three distinct explosions followed by an immense column of smoke which could be seen miles away.

Six bodies had been recovered up to 8 o'clock, while several persons were seriously injured and large numbers of others with slighter hurts had been taken to the hospitals.

Two Fire Autos Paid For There is more automobile trouble at city hall and it consists of a puncture of authority rather than tire puncture. It seems that Commissioner Brown didn't know anything about the Seagraves and Robinson auto fire machine having been paid for until last night. He thinks he should have been notified. The amount of the check given the Seagraves people was $555.21 and the Robinson company's check was for $330.00. The fire department was forbidden to use the Robinson car until paid for. Both machines were duly purchased under contract. The injunction secured by Alderman Brown was on the Knox machine which is not yet paid for. Police Promotions A few months ago two supernumerary officers were filed in their civil service standing for promotion to the regular police force and one of them voluntarily gave way to the other. The two men were William Keegan and Jerome Cullen. It was Mr. Keegan who said: "Give Mr. Cullen the place, I will wait." Mr. Cullen was appointed and today the man who so unselfishly gave way to Mr. Cullen was himself appointed to the regular force by Mayor O'Donnell, not because he had acted so much the man on a former occasion, but because of the fact that he still stood at the head of the civil service list for promotion from the supernumerary to the regular force. The mayor also made public today the appointment of Frank L. Maloney, the well known athlete, whose home is in Summer street, to the supernumerary force. He, too, stood at the top of the civil service list for appointment to the supernumerary force. Officer Bennett Promoted Mayor O'Donnell stated today that Patrolman John Bennett, who recently underwent an operation at St. John's hospital for the amputation of his left leg, above the knee, would be retired on pension. Mr. Bennett has applied for retirement and as soon as the necessary formalities have been gone through with he will be placed on the list. The pay of a retired patrolman is one half his regular pay, or $13.50 a day. Requisition for Horses Mayor O'Donnell has put in an order for twelve new horses for the board of health. The term "new horses" does not mean that the horses must be made to order, but simply to distinguish between the old and the new. Some of the horses used by the board of health at the present time are in a bad way and should either be sent to the happy hunting ground or to Red Cross farm. Mayor O'Donnell very truly remarked, today, that the society for the prevention to animals would have protested against the use of the horses long ago but for the fact that they belonged to the city, the society, believing of course, that the city would not abuse them. The fact remains, however, that the horses have had to work despite the fact that some of them have reached the rare old age of 27 years and are battered and bruised and scarred and rent. The health department has been hiring eight horses at a cost of $1 a day per horse and that, the mayor believes, is not a very good paying investment. Some Fire Warnings That forest fires in Massachusetts in the past three years have caused a damage of $323,965 is the leading item in a notice sent out by State Forester F. W. Hane. Last summer, the notice states, there were 1110 fires caused by carelessness; 648 fires caused by defective locomotives; 93 forest fires caused by clearing land; $12,719 of public money was spent in preventing and extinguishing forest fires and the total damage caused by forest fires was $39,521. At this point in the notice appears in big black letters the interrogation: Why? The answer is as follows: Just because someone left the camp fire smoldering. Just because auto parties threw lighted matches, cigar stubs and cigarette butts along the highway. Just because the use of defective locomotives was permitted. Just because we and our children were careless in handling matches when in the woods. This great annual loss by forest fires can be stopped. Will you help? Don't throw away lighted matches, cigar stubs or cigarette butts. Don't fail to procure a permit from the forest warden to set any open-air fire. Don't forget that it is a prison offense to set such fire without a permit. Don't forget that you are liable to a fine, imprisonment and damages for violating the forest fire laws.

MUST HELP PRESIDENT WILSON

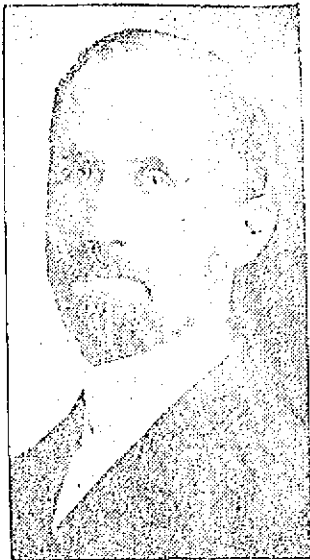

Struggle Now Before the Nation Greater Than Any War

President Woodrow Wilson's appeal, in his inaugural address to the people of the country, summoning all honest men to his side in the interest of good government, was made the basis of a sermon by Rev. Asa Reed Bates of Calvary Baptist church last night.

In part he said: "We are now facing a great conflict involving the question of whether righteousness shall prevail in our governmental machine in its relationship to its business. Shall this government be for all or for a few? Shall the law take its course in the cases of rich men, as well as in the cases of poor men?"

"The greatest war in our country's history is hardly comparable with the struggle now before the nation. For years, a conflict has been growing which touches every opportunity, as guaranteed by the constitution, and the result is not a natural. The poor man does not receive the treatment in the courts which the rich man receives. Wealth too often has overriden justice. Courts have been tilted by precedent and technicality, and justice has slept in consequence.

"This country has called to the presidential chair Woodrow Wilson, a man who, in my opinion, is well equipped to meet the many problems that have developed within a brief time, but he must have assistance, as he clearly indicates in his message. He sounds a trumpet call to the nation. Fully appreciating the situation which he faces, he says, this is a situation and a triumph, and he trusts the cooperation of the country to the end that genuine progress may result.

"To me it is very significant that the man whom Woodrow Wilson chose when he took his oath of office, a man whose life indicated a situation demanding a leader and giving assurance of the support necessary to meet the problems of the nation, was a man who had been in the White House for many years, but in no way was he a member of the ruling class.

"I believe that the man who will stand for the people in the White House will stand for the people in the White House. I believe that the man who will stand for the people in the White House will stand for the people in the White House. I believe that the man who will stand for the people in the White House will stand for the people in the White House.

"We must all play the part if we are to have a better government. We must all play the part if we are to have a better government. We must all play the part if we are to have a better government. We must all play the part if we are to have a better government. We must all play the part if we are to have a better government.

PASTORAL CHURCH

Sacred Cantata, "Ruth," Was Rendered at the Vesper Service Last Evening by the Choir

The chorus choir of the Pastoral church at the vesper service last night sang the sacred cantata, "Ruth," a fine musical setting of the biblical story. The choir was under the direction of Mr. S. R. Fleet, and rendered this difficult production in a very artistic manner.

There was a large congregation present and the musical numbers were a real treat. At the opening of the service the organist, Mr. Sidney R. Fleet, and Miss Murphy at the piano, played "Adoration."

The characters of the story were sung by Mrs. A. E. Howe, as "Naomi," Mrs. O. R. Park as "Ruth," Miss C. M. Bartlett as "Orpah," and Mr. E. N. Alexander as "Boaz." The concert numbers were rendered by a large chorus, and the organ accompaniment was supplemented by Miss Laura F. Murphy.

WILSON WILL OPEN CONVENTION

President Will Press Button Which Will Open Session in Fort Worth, Texas

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The president of the United States, Woodrow Wilson, today decided that hereafter he will make appointments only after 11 o'clock in the morning, or for the evening in the afternoon. He plans to come to the executive office at 9 a. m. and first devote two full uninterrupted hours to correspondence and other business, each day. Members of his cabinet and persons for whom he sends will not be subject to the new rule, but all others will. On cabinet days the president will see his visitors before 11 o'clock, the hour of meeting.

Postmaster General Burleson received the executive orders today just a few minutes after the president walked over from the White House. Several democratic national committee-men from the west had engagements today. Mr. Stone, speaker of the house, and Representative Alexander of Missouri, who were next on the list, came to discuss Missouri's claims to several important positions. Late today in the east room the men of the diplomatic corps were to be presented formally to the president and on Wednesday the diplomatic corps will meet Mr. Wilson. Tonight at 9 o'clock the president will press a button in the White House which will open a stock breeders' convention at Fort Worth, Tex.

Secretary Garrison, after a talk with the president, said that Mr. Wilson agreed with him that the personnel of the war department ought not to be disturbed by him for several weeks.

President Wilson's rule about discussing patronage with his visitors does not apply to members of congress. It was pointed out at the White House today that the president intended his announcement that office seekers should address themselves to heads of departments should not be interpreted as including senators and representatives, to whom the president hopes to be accessible at all times and on all subjects. Mr. Wilson intends to consult with cabinet members about the recommendation of members of congress and vice versa.

POLICE COURT SESSION MEN'S MISSION OPENED

Man Found Guilty of With Big Attendance at Stealing Suit the Immaculate

The case of Nicholas Sloan, charged with drunkenness and the larceny of a suit of clothes, was the feature of this morning's police court session. The defendant pleaded guilty to drunkenness but refused to admit the theft of the suit.

Max Weiss, a second-hand clothing dealer was the first witness and testified to giving Sloan seventy-five cents for a suit which was exhibited in court. He said that he did not know the defendant. Inspector Walsh was next called. He stated that he had followed the defendant into a bar-room and asked him about the suit in question and that Sloan had denied all knowledge of ever having seen or sold it. The inspector then proceeded to look up Nicholas on suspicion. After a short search he located the place where the man had stopped who bought the suit but could not produce him as his present whereabouts was unknown. Inspector Walsh was very positive that the suit did not get into the defendant's hands by lawful methods, however.

Sloan took the stand in his own defense and related to the court how a total stranger had come up to him at the depot and deposited the suit with him to do with as he saw fit. Therefore, he Sloan, had immediately made tracks for the establishment of Max Weiss and Weiss in turn for the price already mentioned. The judge, however, could not quite follow Sloan's argument and found him guilty.

The case was continued until Saturday for sentence with the hope that the owner of the wearing apparel might be brought to light.

Thomas Egan was before the court for drunkenness and upon giving his solemn promise to keep away from all alcoholic beverages was given a suspended sentence to the state farm. John Drady, a fourth offender for drunkenness and James K. Gilbride, a third offender for the same offense were given indefinite periods at the state farm.

David Cote, George Wigley and John Neary were fined $5 for their second appearance within a year for drunkenness and Joseph St. Lawrence paid $5 for the same offense on Sunday.

Eugene Ducharme was committed to jail for a stretch of four months for being a confirmed drunkard. Patrick J. O'Brien pleaded not guilty through his counsel, Col. Carmichael, on continuance from Saturday and asked to have the case continued. Judge Enright continued the case until tomorrow morning.

Fourteen first offenders were released on the recommendation of probation officer Slattery and one second timer for drunkenness was fined two dollars.

SQUAD OF POLICEWOMEN

Chicago Mayor in Favor of Plan

CHICAGO, March 10.—Mayor Carter Harrison returned from New York last night with a plan of having women police here. He said it might be possible to have several women placed as inspectors when the police reorganization plan is effected.

"My idea is that we should have a squad of, say, 30 or 40 policewomen," said the mayor. "I believe they would handle many matters of police work better than men do. For instance, in vice work, investigating complaints of young women who are held in resorts and similar places, they could get much better results than men."

DEMAND WAGE INCREASE

N.Y.N.H. & H. Employees Want More Pay

NEW YORK, March 10.—The New York, New Haven & Hartford R. R. Co. announced today that all the company's employees engaged in electrifying the system had served demands on the roads for an increase in pay, shorter working hours and other concessions. The increase demanded averaged 25 per cent. over the present wages. The company has been given until March 15 to reply to the demands; should there be no reply by that date Mr. Preen, the organizer, said, the men will walk out.

The men also say the time they consume traveling to and from work should be included in the day's work, and that nine hours shall constitute a day. Mr. Preen said the men would meet in New Rochelle on March 17 to discuss the company's reply, if received or to decide when to walk out.

Proposed Interurban Road
BOSTON, March 10.—The legislature extended by 15 months yesterday the time within which work must be begun on the proposed interurban electric railroad from this city to Providence R. I. The promoters explained that entrance into Providence was expected over the route granted by the Southern New England railroad. Locations for the R. ANOTHER ACT OF ARSON

Is Charged Against the Militant Suffragettes

LONDON, March 10.—To militant suffragettes today is ascribed another act of arson. Early this morning the Sanderson station in the Great Western railroad was set on fire and burned to the ground, together with all its contents. Sanderson is about 35 miles from London in Buckinghamshire. Two placards were found in the vicinity on which were painted the words, "Barricade to get the vote," and "Votes for Women." The fire brigades from the neighboring towns found it impossible to save anything.

Another station, Grouley Green, about three miles to the north of London on the London & North Western railroad, also was burned down this morning, but the cause of the fire has not been ascertained.

The Worcester team will, in all probability be the highest salaried team playing the New England circuit this season. Burdett has evidently decided to do his best to annex another league pennant and is not letting the matter of salaries bother him in his efforts. The other managers are striving to cut down the salary limit but the Worcester manager seems to be a stumbling block in their path of economy. Lynn also will have some richly paid men included in her outfit this year.

Baseball will soon be in full swing again and the sport which was relegated to the minors. No matter what may be said on the subject, the fact remains that the baseball leagues play the form of sport that is most appreciated by the American public. Lowell has always proved a good ball town and with the added inducement of the finest bleachers and stands in the circuit this season should be the most profitable from both the spectators and the owners standpoint that a local team has ever had.

A Boston paper comments this morning on the hold to the game that Packey McFarland has given by his model habits and his pleasing manner. This same article brings to the writer's mind the time when a local boxer was known from coast to coast as "Gentleman Jim." When it comes to clean, gentlemanly conduct, both in the ring and out of it, there never was a more scrupulous exponent of the ring than Jimmy Gardner. For that matter, Joe Thomas is also a figure that stands out prominently when a question of refinement is raised. He is a more refined boxer who are always howling about the brutality of the game and the ruffianism of its participants could only be

LOCAL ALLEYS CROWDED

Numerous Games Rolled
Saturday Night

Several of the usual Saturday night matches proved very close and interesting and the local alleys were crowded to their capacity in spite of the rise in temperature.

In the Crescent Two-man bowling league there were two games played. A very rare thing happened in the match between Team 12 and Team 24, both quintets putting up the same total of 551. Team One beat Team 11 by the score of 552 to 545. Canton of Team One was high man with 302.

The Giants second team won their match from the Salem A. C. in a rather slow game by the score of 1903 to 222. Both teams rolled with four men.

The Tremont & Suffolk bowlers were the winners in their match with the Appleton team by a runaway score. The former rolled a hundred pins, William McDermott of the winners was high man with 284.

The Dingbats were easy victors in their game with the Wonders. Each team was composed of three men and three women.

The Spinning team defeated the Weaving team in their Bay State match by the score of 1213 to 1130. Hulme was the high man with 255.

MUNICE AND MEYERS

Charlestown Boxers to Meet in This City

A feature of this week's meeting of the Lowell Social and Athletic club will be the main bout in which two Charlestown boxers will appear and the leadership of the district promises to be shared by the two fighters. The meeting between Johnny Munice and Henry Meyers, the feather-weight rivals, who will struggle in a 12-round bout for the Barker Hill championship.

Meyers comes from the other side of the Hill, and has been boxing a few years longer than Munice. For the latter to claim he is the champion of the division was enough to rile the feelings of the boy who has forced K. O. Brown and Pat Moore to step out of the ring. Meyers against boxers near his own weight never failed to make good, and the same applies to Munice. Now that the pair are to meet in a weight which will find them at their best, a contest well worth traveling the distance to see will be on tap.

Johnny Boyle, the local lightweight, will appear in the semi-final against Roddy McDonald, a very lively and clever boxer. Boyle is stepping along at a fast pace these days and feels confident that he will add another win to his credit. McDonald, too, is quite confident and expects to be returned the winner. Young Cooney and Young Sullivan will meet in one of the six round bouts and Finney Boyle, brother of Johnny and Young Cooney, will clash in the other preliminary.

If you want help at home or in your business, try The Sun "Want" column.

brought into contact with some of the boxers of this type there would be a great many surprises.

Tonight's bout in Salem between Ray Wood and Matty Baldwin should be a hummer from start to finish. The Charlestown boxer is reported to be in fine shape and will certainly have to be when he meets the tough little Frenchman. Wood is picked by the critics to win or at worst to gain a shade on a draw decision.

Howe the colored flier of the English high track team, certainly lived up to expectations. For three laps or better he would be a hard matter to find a sprinter to beat this boy whether he be in the high school class or not. Howe did not show his stride until the stretches were reached, and even at that his true form did not show until the last lap in both the 200 yards and the relay. For a strong, powerful, aggressive quarter-raller, the Boston school captain has no equal in the schoolboy ranks throughout the country.

Both Larkin Trull and Charlie Carter threatened to beat Howe in the first two laps of the 300 yards and relay respectively. The latter especially, appeared to be a danger over him in the final event of the evening which both men started but the fast lap showed the wonderful finishing powers of Howe. Carter and Trull, however, ran splendid races against a man that they knew was a "whirlwind" and whereas some athletes would have acknowledged defeat before they had covered the distance, Howe undoubtedly covered the distance in the fastest time that they had ever been clocked when up against the track from the hub.

DIAMOND NOTES

The Cleveland club is trying the experiment of giving a trial to an amateur pitcher. He is a William G. Tabor, a young giant, who twirled for an amateur team in Manchester, N. H. last year.

Bob Lowe, the veteran Detroit scout, is considering deserting baseball to go into the real estate business in Detroit, permanently. He has been playing his new vocation in a trial sort of way through the winter.

Buck Weaver, the White Sox shortstop, is learning to hit left-handed. He was not satisfied with his right-handed average last year.

At Orth of the National league staff of umpires, the former "curlew" wader, has taken charge of the baseball squad of Washington and Lee university in Lexington, Va.

Dudley Farnsworth, a schoolboy from the Rockland military academy, is practicing with the New Yorks, in Bermuda and has made an impression as a third baseman. Chance may offer him a contract.

Zeb Terry, shortstop for the University of Stanford baseball team, is reported by "Dick Egan," the famous Cincinnati second sacker, as the most promising ball player he has seen in years. "He knows how to play, to do the right thing at the right time, and he is a smart player. Add to this his natural ability, and you have a big leaguer," explains Egan. Terry is only a lightweight, tipping the beam at 135 pounds. He stands five foot ten. He has been sought by the Portland Coastiers, and many other clubs have lined out for him. Terry finishes up at college in May and he has not decided as yet if he will take a fling on the diamond.

According to advices received from Martin, Tex., the New York national's training camp, Rube Marquard, the Giant's star left-handed pitcher, who won nineteen straight games last summer, will report to Manager McGraw in Martin on March 20. McGraw has received assurances through a third party that Marquard will report to the Giants at the end of his theatrical engagement which closes in Los Angeles at the end of next week.

Manager Fran's Chance of the Yankees could hardly have struck his former employer. Charles W. Murphy, more squarely than by his prediction that the Giants would suffer, is helping the club's director to play up to his standard game. Evers' disposition was never any too sunny. Johnny is very nervous and with the additional strain it would not be surprising to learn of a breakdown.

Eppa Rixey has reiterated that he will not join the Phillies until June, when he completes his course in the university of Virginia. In the meantime the elongated hatter is helping coach the nine of his alma mater and incidentally doing a little training himself, so that he will be in ship shape when he reports.

As a new sort of exercise the White Sox, in California, are playing, raquet and soccer football.

Joe Birmingham is trying to develop Juddy Ryan to take his place regularly in centre field, so that he will be able to manage the Clevelanders from the bench.

Hal Chase of the New York Americans has sprained his ankle and will be out of practice for probably two weeks, according to cable advices received in New York from Bermuda. The despatch says that Chase was covering second base when a player, sliding, struck him and twisted the ankle.

TRACK TEAM OF THE LOWELL HIGH SCHOOL WON VICTORY
OVER BOSTON ENGLISH HIGH SATURDAY NIGHT—OTHER ITEMS

THE LOWELL HIGH SCHOOL TRACK TEAM

Lowell high was the winner in their dual track meet with English high of Boston at the local indoor track at the high school annex Saturday night. The well balanced team that the Lowell boys placed on the track and their familiarity with the track were the two reasons for the win. The final score was Lowell 45, English high 32.

Howe, of the visitors was the individual star beyond any dispute and showed the spectators a brand of running that has seldom been seen in this city. Howe showed himself a good runner in the field events as well as on the track and captured both the shot put and high jump without much apparent exertion. Howe gave a great exhibition in the 300 yard dash running in second place until the last lap had been reached. Captain Bailey received a bad fall on the first bank or the colored wonder would not have had the easy time that he did have in this event. His winning of the 30 yard dash was also a revelation to the track fans. Howe started from behind and did all his running in the last ten yards of the race and pulled in a handy winner over the three Lowell men who lived through for the final.

The running of Perry in the mile run was another surprise to those who had not followed the distance runners in their work this season. This boy has been running along from behind in every meet this year and showing a tremendous finish but has always been so far in the rear that his chances of placing were very small. Last night, however, he ran a different style race and took the lead at the outset and was never headed after the first lap had been traveled. Perry also showed a fine burst of speed in the 1000 yard run which carried him home a winner on the last two laps.

Cunningham, a boy who has shown signs of great promise throughout the season, took first place in the hurdles. This lad showed good form and his win over the three boys would probably have been the same if allowances had not been made for his "L."

The meet, taken as a whole was one of the most interesting from a spectator's standpoint that has ever been pulled off at the local track.

The summary:

30 yard dash: First heat won by Howe, Boston, and Pendleton, Boston. Second heat won by Cahill, Boston and Carter, Lowell, second. Third heat won by Cunningham, Lowell and Spalding, Lowell, second. THE TOLLS QUESTION

The controversy over the decision of congress to exempt our coastwise trade from tolls in passing the Panama canal, still goes merrily on.

The officials of America have sought to justify their position, England has reiterated her protest, and the resources of diplomacy seem to have been exhausted. Some of the most brilliant minds in this country take the stand that America acted hastily and without due regard to treaties already existing with England. Public opinion is strongly divided as to the merits of the case, some holding that America is justified, others insisting that the exemption of our ships is a stain on our national honor to preserve which should be our first consideration.

At the recent banquet of the New England traffic club at the Copley Plaza hotel in Boston this question of the Panama canal tolls was dwelt on by Congressman Stevens of Minnesota and Sims of Tennessee, the former a republican who was for several years chairman of the congressional committee on the canal, and the other a democrat who is at present a member of the committee on interstate and foreign commerce. Neither spoke from a party standpoint but each gave his personal opinion as to what our future procedure should be on the tolls question. Congressman Stevens declared himself emphatically in favor of arbitration, saying in part, "The United States has been first among the countries of the world in insisting upon the peaceful arbitration of international questions and now our good faith is to be put to the test." The democratic congressman on the other hand declared that not only our international honor but our future prosperity is seriously affected by the regulation as passed by congress. He thinks the most direct solution of the dilemma is that congress should re-consider its action and declare against free tolls.

In outlining the effects of the present policy if continued, each congressman brought out some interesting points, consideration of which might materially aid the declaration of our national conscience in favor of arbitration of the question or repeal of the present law. In all international questions nations are governed largely through a regard for material prosperity. When national honor and national gain are each served by a certain decision everything goes smoothly, but when a call comes for that subserves honor but endangers prosperity, it is difficult to obtain unanimity of action. The congressmen in their Boston speeches declared that the exemption of American coastwise traffic from the payment of tolls would be a national injury rather than an advantage. As such exemption only refers to ships trading exclusively in domestic waters, it would tend to restrain commerce and prevent the extension of our traffic with the Latin-American countries, which is the greatest possibility of the Panama canal. Again, the federal laws which prohibit any foreign ship from doing a coastwise business have tended to make our coastwise shipping an absolute monopoly, and as such it would be benefited by the exemption of tolls without any direct good accruing to the people from whom the cost of the canal must ultimately come. Such an exemption, therefore, savors of the special privilege now so universally condemned as a foe to good government.

In the question of Panama canal tolls, America has taken a stand that reflects on our international honor. Not only does England protest against it but many of our most prominent public men take the same view. It is therefore time that the wrong, if wrong has been done, should be righted. For the purpose of considering the question from all possible angles the most feasible and logical course open to us is to subject the matter to an impartial tribunal of arbitration. Should an adverse decision be given we should accept it instantly, the hurt to our national pride being partly smoothed by the consciousness that a sense of our just dealings will be re-established abroad, and a better prospect for commercial prosperity established at home.

A NEW MENACE

The New York World calls attention to the fact that though for many years our presidents were safe from the attacks of the assassin, three of them have fallen by his hand in comparatively recent times. This points to a lawless element that has grown into our civilization, the products of which are now apparent to all who read the daily newspapers. Since District Attorney Whitman set out to uncover the graft of New York he has received letters that threaten the lives of himself and family. So persistent were these threats that he deemed it advisable to send Mrs. Whitman and his son out of

New York to a place of greater safety, until the agitation has died down. Within the last few years Mayor Gaynor and Theodore Roosevelt were each a target for bullets, and the election of Woodrow Wilson to the presidency called forth letters of a threatening nature from some mountaineers in Virginia. It is now found necessary to guard our presidents with all the caution that is exercised in the case of old world monarchs.

This new menace is not a native production. It has been born of foreign discontent and is the result of the extreme socialistic and anti-religious agitation that is manifested in many European countries. False leaders have arisen and led many astray temporarily. In the desire for social betterment some seek to break down all the barriers of law and moral restraint, and no means that will further these ends are disdained, though it means the murder of the best and greatest of men. To them nothing is wrong that will result in ultimate right, as they understand it, and as the end sought is personal independence and the abolition of all authority, human and divine, it can readily be seen that the greatest crimes committed in furtherance of their cause are viewed as virtuous acts. Nothing but the sternest application of restrictive legal measures will stamp out this hideous crime. The men who kill, or threaten to kill, are usually fanatics or those in whom the workings of conscience or the sense of moral responsibility has been deadened. With the growth of a greater spirit of humanity all over the world there may be a speedy end to this unreasoning hate against all who symbolize authority, but for the present the laws must be made specific and adequate in order to prevent such pernicious activity as that which resulted in the death of Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley.

THE APARTMENT HOUSE

All over the country and particularly in New England the apartment house is becoming more and more popular and in Lowell the movement in that direction is just beginning. The tendency may be deplored but it cannot be ignored. The apartment house is being erected against, tolerated, finally commended. In Worcester and Providence stately apartment houses dot best residential sections. Brookline, the Back Bay, and other neighborhoods where the wealthy residents of Boston reside, have them in abundance. Even on New York's Fifth Avenue they rear their massive and often palatial exteriors beside the private mansions of the wealthiest and most aristocratic residents.

The diversity of interests and pleasures which now call people from home and the difficulty of securing domestic servants, have made the apartment house a necessity of modern times. To some who inhabit them they are necessary evils, to others they are the last word in home comfort and convenience. They do away with much of the old romance that surrounded the home with its privacy and opportunity for individual expression, and so may be deplored by the romantic and the sentimental. On the other hand they eliminate the old annoyances of the boiler that refused to work properly, the lawn that must be cut, the coal cook that persisted in changing her position with every change in the weather. Apartment houses have not yet reached a real level that makes them available to the lowest in the social scale, and so cannot be very detrimental to adjacent property. They are a product of the times and though now condemned in some quarters, they will be one of the familiar sights of all our cities in a very few years. They are looming up in Haverhill, Worcester, and other cities and are bound to secure a place in Lowell whether we like them or not. The new conditions have made them a necessity.

THE NEW NICKEL

The general reception of the new nickel has established a variation of the old ascription that Americans desire money above all things and are not at all particular how they acquire it. Modern Americans, however, seem very particular about the style of coins they crave. The new nickel has offended the aesthetic sense of most people. It is wonderful indeed how many art critics and students of natural history it has brought to light. The features most criticized are the very unflattering Indian and the poor buffalo who is forced to painful gymnastic feats to confine his paces to a restrictive circle. The designer not only has given him a very strained attitude but bedecked him with a style of whisker that is generally thought most unbecoming. Possibly much of this criticism is prompted by regret for the fair lady with the liberty cap who is to be discarded. But though reduced to association with

SIR THOMAS LIPTON

The challenge sent by Sir Thomas Lipton has ensured the fact of another international yacht race between England and America in the near future. The distinguished Irishman shows himself possessed of those qualities that we admire in all sportsmen worthy of the name—pluck, good nature, and perseverance. The three races already run have established beyond doubt not only the superiority of the American yacht, but also the superiority of the spirit of Lipton to defeat. As far as the result of the coming contest is concerned, America does not fear the outcome but will await calmly the coming of the fourth "Shamrock."

If President Wilson chooses other candidates for public office as cautiously and successfully as he has his cabinet there will be but little public criticism of his determination to deny personal interviews to office seekers. His rule is a very wise one and does no one an injustice, as the man who cannot get his acts or some other person would scarcely be taken seriously in self-laudation. Some disappointed ones will grieve of course but the murmurs of discontent will be drowned in the chorus of approval.

Seen and Heard

The provoking thing about it is that the people who snore are themselves the soundest of sound sleepers.

You can't fill a boy's heart with joy by giving him a tooth brush for a present.

To preserve his peace of mind, the proofreader never reads the paper after it is printed.

As any Californian will tell you the climate of California is still absolutely pure, though it may be marred occasionally by the weather.

The girl who has been saving to get money enough to buy a new must now has eight months in which to complete the undertaking.

The man who has had the grippe might as well make up his mind that the world isn't going to give him any quarter as much sympathy as he deserves.

The mountains in Switzerland are really very high even in comparison with the rates at the fashionable Swiss hotels.

The man who has made a garden before may make one again this year, but he has given up all hope of growing any tomatoes as big as those pictured in the seed catalogs.

Don't think that a man is absolutely regardless of himself just because he tells you: "I'm not in business for my health."

The Frenchman doesn't like to be called Johnny Croissant, and yet the uniforms of all the French military officers all have frogs.

If the young doctor is really handsome, it isn't surprising that the girls wait him all over every time they have a headache.

The confidence man presumably is so called because he doesn't deserve any one's confidence.

Conversation, to be really successful, needs to be carried on between two people, one of whom is bright, and the other appreciates brightness and is glad to show appreciation.

When a man buys his first dress-suit case, it is a time to get one that is solid and strong enough to last a thousand years, but the second suit-case he buys is likely to be light, if rather flimsy.

SPRING

The light of Spring is in the sky Each pleasant afternoon. The robins are watching for Will be here pretty soon. The trees, waked from their winter's sleep, Will soon begin to bud. And people in the suburbs now Are wading through the mud.

The snowdrops shy are peeping out. All pure and undefiled. The days are growing longer and The air is soft and mild. There's something in the thought of Spring That always stirs the blood. And meanwhile the suburbanite Goes ploughing through the mud.

The maples glow with reddish hue. The lilac buds are green. The glossy cabbage-leafed slunk Within the woods is seen. Soon we shall hear the annual tale Of Missus's flood. While here at home we daily take Our rubbers in the mud.

WHEN MY SHIP GOES OUT.

Not when my ship comes in I look for treasures rare. But when my ship goes out, then will I seek them there. Laid up above where loved ones dwell. For where the heart is, so they tell. There will the treasure be. And if they come to others, why not to me?

They were to me bright, beautiful gems of wealth untold. I pressed them to my heart and would them closely hold. And thought that I might always keep Those little priceless gems to me so dear.

I was so proud with happy thought, For gems to mine, I said, could never be bought. One day the angels came and said "You now must give them up." And to my ship was pressed the deep and bitter cry.

I drank it all, then prayed to die. For I knew not of life beyond the sky. And as they claimed them for their own, My heart cried in sorrow's moan.

Oh, spare me one sweet gem, I said, one little gem to cheer my lonely home and make my heart more light. You surely have enough within your home.

Why do you come for mine and leave me here alone? The Angel answered me and said, "I must obey. 'Tis by the Father's will I take your gems away."

Parents and Schools
Portland Express: Seven hundred Cleveland children, supported by their parents, recently went on strike. The reason was an allegation that their school building was a firetrap and also in danger of collapse. It is interesting to note that not until satisfactory steps were taken to remedy the existing evils was the strike declared off. It is a point worth noting that in one instance at least parents are taking some cognizance of the welfare of their children in school. A parental understanding of the conditions under which their boys and girls study would be a fine thing for every community. It would mean the compulsory installation of safety and sanitary devices, that would result in a stronger and healthier rising generation. The parents are the ones, above all others, who should keep our schools up to the standard of efficiency.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Reforestation

LYNN NEWS: Whatever the state may do, however, individuals who are owners of waste land, should for themselves consider the possibility of re-planting this land with trees. A good crop of trees will in some years bring a good return, and the annual expenditure of a few cents will insure them in what may be done, or to co-operate with them in the replanting. It is worth thinking about.

England Cautious

Foster's Democrat: England not only excludes foreign military air craft, but also excludes any person violating the law of the land. To make the exclusion act more effective, why not offer rewards for the remains of flying aviators? It is better to instruct them in what may be done, or to co-operate with them in the replanting. It is worth thinking about.

A Contrast

Burlington Free Press: There is a marked difference between President Taft's gentlemanly and generous treatment of his successor in the White House and the way in which Roosevelt left Washington in a huff while his choice for a successor was being decided. Taft's treatment of Roosevelt is a contrast to the way in which Roosevelt treated Taft.

ON SMOKE ABATEMENT

Lecture by W. H. Gerrish to Engineers

Lowell Association, No. 17, N. A. S. E., held a very largely attended meeting on Friday evening, the occasion being a lecture on Smoke Prevention and Abatement, by William H. Gerrish, chief smoke inspector of the city of Boston. Mr. Gerrish who, by the way, is a native of Lowell, is considered an expert on this subject and has accomplished wonders in the elimination of smoke in Boston and vicinity. He spoke for over an hour and handled his subject in a plain and logical manner. He started by explaining what smoke is and how it is formed, and the difference between smoke from boiler furnaces and fumes from turbines for heating metals and from chemical works. He then took up the matter of the coal we have to use in the eastern states, such as Pocahontas and New River, Georges Creek, etc., and explained the difference between them and western coals, which are high in volatile matter, consequently more liable to smoke; the eastern states' coal having 17 to 20 per cent. volatile matter against 25 to 30 per cent. in western coals and showing that the engineer or fireman in this section of the country has a far easier time preventing smoke and getting good combustion than his western brothers.

The subject of boiler furnace construction was next taken up and the speaker showed by sketches on the blackboard different types, and stated that the fault with most smoky furnaces was that the grate was too near the boiler, cooling off the products of combustion before they have a chance to combine with the air, and letting them go to the chimney uncombined.

Mr. Gerrish next took up the subject of smoke preventing or consuming devices and explained by sketches the construction and operation of the different ones used in and about Boston. He stated that there were five ways of avoiding smoke, viz., by using anti-smoke or hard coal; anthracite in the small sizes, birdseye, buckwheat, etc., mixed with bituminous in the proportion of two to one. Mechanical stokers, steam combustion tubes or steam jets over the fire and by very careful hand firing. He also explained the devices and methods used to prevent smoke in wood working establishments and why that problem was a different one from the coal-burning plant.

After the lecture Mr. Gerrish invited those present to ask questions and for some time he was kept busy answering them. This part of the program proved to be as interesting as the lecture itself and showed that the engineers and firemen or at least those present were very much interested in this subject and very anxious to learn all they could about it, and to put in practice any advice or suggestions given them by Mr. Gerrish.

$100,000 LOSS BY FIRE

Explosions Cause Peril at Presque Isle

PRESQUE ISLE, Me., March 10.—The business section of Presque Isle was damaged $100,000 by fire early yesterday.

Starting in the basement of Green's block on West Main street the blaze spread rapidly and before it was controlled Green's block and Friedman's block were destroyed. The firms suffering losses are Parker Jacques, tailor; Grant's tailor shop; G. H. Freeman, hardware; A. C. Perry, insurance; Geo. F. Larrabee, druggist; Mrs. M. A. McCormick, millinery; Maurice White, barber; Green Bros., clothing; Herman Cook, agency office; Frank Hayes, hawking alleys and restaurant; Dr. Frank Kilburn and Yates Shoe company. Nearly all the losses are covered by insurance.

The fire had been smoldering for hours, probably, before it was discovered. Explosions of cartridges and of dynamite in one of the burning stores made the work of the firemen dangerous. A plate glass window in a store on the opposite side of the street was broken by an explosion.

Harry M. De Long and family were asleep in a tenement over the Larrabee drug store when the fire broke out, but escaped.

BANK OFFICIAL RESIGNS

Treasurer of Marlboro Institution Disappears

MARLBORO, March 10.—The mystery in the disappearance of Clifford R. Russell, treasurer of the Marlboro Cooperative bank, on Thursday, only deepened yesterday when it became known that President Eugene O. Brigham of the institution had received a special delivery letter, postmarked Boston, which is said to contain Mr. Russell's resignation, but does not disclose his present whereabouts.

Mr. Brigham reiterated that the affairs of the bank are all right, and that there is absolutely no shadow of a doubt as to the solvency of the bank. He stated, coupled with the fact that no shareholders in the bank have as yet given any indication of demanding their money on the next monthly payment day, Thursday, strengthens the theory that he left Marlboro because of nervous prostration.

Yesterday morning thousands of cards were sent to points all over New England by Mr. Russell's friends, containing a description of the man, they were sent to Masonic bodies everywhere, and it is expected that brother Masons will aid in the hunt. Similarly the police will send circulars to all police heads in Massachusetts.

The belief is current that someone from the office of the state bank examiner will reach Marlboro today to make an examination of the books of the bank. It has been learned that Russell was in Boston Wednesday last, the day preceding his disappearance, and that he did not return to Marlboro until the 1 A. M. train, so that it is believed that his disappearance was deliberately planned.

MISSING GIRL FOUND

Says She Was Tired of High School

BOSTON, March 10.—Charlotte Hope, the 15-year-old daughter of Frank L. Hope of Somerville, whose disappearance on Thursday mystified her friends and baffled the police, returned to her home last night. A high school chum of hers had telephoned and invited her into meeting him and then notified the police and her father of the meeting place.

She had been in a Mr. Auburn street lodging house in Cambridge for two nights and a day, and in a Somerville boarding house since Saturday morning, posing as a Miss Howland. The reason for her disappearance she gave as unwillingness to continue her school work. Miss Hope's return to her home was due in large part to the assistance which a 17-year-old chum in the Somerville high school, where she was a freshman, lent to Inspector Kennedy and Mr. Hope.

The girl had been seen in Harvard Square, Cambridge, on the night of the day she disappeared from home. Inspector Kennedy got into touch with some of her chums, including one boy whose name is being withheld by the police. From him he learned that he had visited her at a Cambridge lodging house and had pleaded in vain that she return home. When the house was visited Miss Hope had been forced to leave by the landlady and had disappeared again.

The woman in charge of the house told the police that the girl, who looks to be 18, had sought a room and had insisted that she was studying at Harvard.

"You mean Radcliffe, don't you?" the landlady says she asked the girl. "No, I mean Harvard," she says Miss Hope answered.

On Friday the landlady decided that the girl was not a student, and demanded that she give up her room and go home.

The police lost her trail after she left Cambridge, but picked it up through the boy chum. She telephoned him and told him she was staying at 5 Sanborn avenue, Somerville. He made an arrangement for her to meet him at 5 o'clock last evening at Sanborn avenue and Walnut street. Then he notified the father and Inspector Kennedy.

Kennedy approached the pair as they were talking together last night, and demanded to know if she was Miss Hope. She replied that she was Miss Howland. She offered no argument, however, when he told her to accompany him to the station.

She asked for time to go into the house and get her hat. Kennedy waited at the rear of the house, and the chum at the front until she reappeared. On the way to the station the girl was met by Mr. Hope who took his daughter home.

She offered no explanation except that she was tired of going to school and wanted to learn the millinery business.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

Issues Statement on the Teachers' Retirement

PLAN TO INCLUDE TEACHERS NOW IN SERVICE

New Bill Was Submitted by the State Board of Education—The Details of the Bill

BOSTON, March 5.—Mr. W. L. Hamilton, agent of the board of education, gave out the following statement this morning:

At the suggestion of the committee on education of the legislature, we have been working during the last ten days on a draft of a bill that will provide a retirement allowance for teachers now in the service of the public schools. The bill proposed by the board of education in its report January, 1913, was drawn along basal lines so that it could be elaborated, but at that time its application was limited to teachers entering the service on and after July 1st, 1914. Following the suggestion of the committee on education, we have consulted the legislative committee of the Massachusetts Teachers'

Federation, who petitioned the legislature for a law covering teachers now in service. We have also conferred with Mr. H. Newton, attorney for the federation, and representatives of other teachers' organizations throughout the state.

By the modification of certain sections in the original bill, and the addition of a few clauses, we have drawn a bill as suggested by the committee on education.

The new provisions as regards teachers now in service, briefly are as follows:

(1) Voluntary membership on the part of teachers now in service.

(2) Voluntary retirement at age sixty for all members.

(3) Compulsory retirement at age sixty for all members.

(4) Limiting assessments to an amount sufficient to produce an annuity not exceeding five hundred dollars at age sixty.

(5) Guarantee of a minimum retirement allowance of three hundred dollars to teachers now in service who become members.

(6) Teachers now in service who become members may receive a pension as if the system had been in operation for thirty years.

(7) Teachers now serving in towns and cities providing pensions cannot become members.

(8) All existing teachers' pension laws become inoperative for teachers entering service on and after July 1st, 1914.

It will be noted that the present draft excludes from membership in the retirement association, the teachers of Boston, Lynn, Nahant, Winchester, Brookline, Pittsfield, Wellesley, Marion and Swampscott.

It is expected that additional legislation must be enacted, opening the retirement system to all teachers who desire to avail themselves of its benefits. However, since this act will not become operative until July 1st, 1914, there is ample opportunity to make such adjustments as are necessary during the session of the next general court.

We feel that the important thing at present is to have a retirement system established having the matter of legal entanglements to be straightened out hereafter, in so far as they affect the towns and cities above mentioned.

There is a strong feeling on the part of many teachers that disability after a certain number of years of service should be recognized as a cause for retirement. With this sentiment, the board of education is in hearty accord, but the board does not recommend embodying disability provisions in an old age measure such as has been proposed by the board of education and by the Massachusetts Teachers' Federation, although in other state systems, the two have been dealt with in the same measure and on similar lines. The board is of the opinion that such procedure is entirely unsound and open to many objections. Inequity for teaching prior to age 60 should be for disability due to sickness or accident rather than for old age. Disability and sickness should be dealt with on an insurance basis. At present, however, there are no available statistics that enable us to decide with any degree of accuracy the occupational risk of teaching as affecting health. We believe that it is possible to secure data and work out this matter on the basis of insurance against sickness and disability so that we may give at least a fair approximation of the probable cost of such insurance. Such computation is entirely impossible at the present time.

In a memorandum to the legislative committee, we said, "In the original report, we said that a complete retirement system should recognize disability as a cause for retirement. It is not expected that this law will go into effect before July 1, 1914. There is ample opportunity, therefore, for a careful consideration of the whole question of teachers' disability before the next session of the general court, when any desirable action could be taken and put into effect at the same time as the old age measure now proposed, takes effect." We recommended, therefore, that the board of education be authorized to investigate and report on the matter in January, 1914, and that $2500 be appropriated for the purpose of the investigation.

PLUCKY WORK OF BOSTON FIREMEN

Prevented Blaze From Spreading
—Summer Street Building
Gutted by Flames

BOSTON, March 10.—Perched on a narrow fire escape, almost surrounded by flames, and in imminent danger of being overcome by smoke, members of engine 3 and 4 held their position for more than an hour during the progress of a fire in the Ferris building at 10 and 12 Summer street, early yesterday morning, preventing the fire from communicating with at least two adjacent structures. The plucky and determined work of these companies won the plaudits of brother firemen and spectators, while Chief Mullen personally praised the men for their efforts.

The fire came a lust, from fire, smoke and water estimated at between $50,000 and $75,000 suffered by the owners of the building and the occupants, principally wholesale millinery and clothing merchants. The cause of the fire is unknown.

In two adjoining buildings there was a slight fire loss, but a heavy water damage. Four alarms were sounded for the fire, which for a time, especially when the flames broke through the roof, throwing out showers of sparks and embers, threatened the section bounded by Summer, Arch and Hawley streets and Dussay place.

The burned building is owned by Mary E. Ferris. It is a five-story stone and brick structure, occupied on the first floor, at 10 Summer street, by the Shindler-Syndicate, a shoe concern. The entrance to the rest of the building is at 12 Summer street. The other occupants are David Danash & Son, wholesale milliners, second floor; the Eastern Millinery Supply company, third floor; Boston Hat & Bonnet company and J. Falkson & Co., wholesale clothing, fifth floor.

The Walton restaurant occupies the first floor of 12 Summer street, while the entrance to the floors above is gained through 12 Summer street. The floor over the restaurant is occupied by George N. Talbot & Co., ladies' hats, while the third, fourth and fifth floors are occupied by Sullivan Brothers, clothing, as workshops and show rooms. This building is owned by Mary E. Ferris and J. B. Ferris. These two buildings are separated by a fire wall which prevented a serious spread of the fire.

Discovery of the Fire
While several firemen had narrow escapes from injuries, only one person was hurt. Patrolman Gleason of the Court square station, who discovered the fire, was thrown down a flight of stairs by an explosion. He was shaken up and cut one hand severely, but he remained at his post.

During the course of the fire a heavy iron elevator wheel was blown from the building into Dussay place, narrowly missing the firemen. The wheel was red hot.

Since the garment workers' strike Patrolman Gleason has been assigned to the section on account of rumors that some of the strikers had been in the vicinity. Early Sunday morning the officer thought there was considerable smoke in the neighborhood, and spent nearly an hour trying to find its source. Finally he succeeded in getting into the Ferris building in company with Thomas Coughlin, watchman of the New England News company, and went to the third floor. He forced open a door leading to the rooms of the Eastern Millinery Supply company, and a resounding explosion followed. Gleason was thrown down almost a whole flight of stairs.

Coughlin was more fortunate and escaped unharmed. At this time an automatic alarm came in from the building, and this was followed by box 42, sounded by Gleason. When Engine 26 pulled up in front of the structure, only a little smoke could be seen coming from the front of the building at the third-floor windows. Members of engines 1 and 2 carried ladders over the stairs to the third floor, but in the meantime at the rear in Dussay place the flames had shown through the windows and another alarm was immediately sent in. Explosions blew out all the windows on the third and fourth floors, and then the flames, having a vent, swept up and gained headway every instant.

Third and Fourth Alarms
The flames were assuming such alarming proportions that Chief Mullen ordered another alarm at 3:15 o'clock, when it appeared that the fire had spread into the rear of the building at 102 Arch street. Fifteen minutes later the flames shot through the roof and at this time the fourth alarm was sent out.

Apparatus which responded to the first two alarms fought the fire from the Dussay place side, while firemen responding to the extra alarms were sent into the adjoining buildings with ladders or onto the roofs of neighboring structures.

After thousands of gallons of water had been poured into the building for more than an hour, it was pronounced under control at 4:30 o'clock, but the all out was not sounded until nearly two hours later.

The building at 38 Summer street, occupied on the first floor by Kennedy & Co., clothing, and by J. J. Peavy & Bro., wholesale clothing, suffered a slight fire loss in the rear and some water damage. Sullivan Bros. sustained a heavy water loss, while the damage from the same source to the Walton restaurant on the street floor was placed at $5000. Smoke and water rained havoc in the establishment of Geo. N. Talbot & Co., milliners.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

Lowell Opera House

Commencing tonight and for the remainder of the week, afternoon and evening, Mr. Loneragan will appear in the cast of the Lowell Opera House. The play for the current week is "Battles," a play first presented in this country by the famous English actor, Mr. Loneragan, and played by him for an entire season in New York city.

In this part Mr. Loneragan has made one of the greatest hits of his career. Some of this will be imported in the People's Club course lecture Wednesday evening at 8 by Professor John I. Bailey of Harvard university. As usual, the lecture will be illustrated by stereopticon, and it will be of rare interest. Everybody is invited to the hall in Russell building and the lecture will run.

Studying the Heavens
In late years, the powerful telescopes of the great observatories have been sweeping the heavens and they have brought to man much new information about the planets and the stars. Some of this will be imported in the People's Club course lecture Wednesday evening at 8 by Professor John I. Bailey of Harvard university. As usual, the lecture will be illustrated by stereopticon, and it will be of rare interest. Everybody is invited to the hall in Russell building and the lecture will run.

Physicians Say Condition is Not Alarming
ROME, March 10.—A marked improvement was noted yesterday in the condition of Pope Pius X, both the inflammation of the throat and the hoarseness being considerably diminished. The attending physicians, however, insist that he continue to rest. The pope passed a tranquil night. Dr. Amici, who remained in an adjacent room, did not need to give his personal services to the patient until this morning. The pope then received the papal secretary of state, Cardinal Merry Del Val, and afterwards his sisters and niece, who remained with him for more than half an hour.

Dr. Marchisavi, in describing the condition of his holiness yesterday, said that there were no symptoms of gout, from which the pope has been a frequent sufferer, but that he is afflicted at the present time with only a simple bronchial affection, somewhat acute, but without any alarming character. He declared that there was nothing of an alarming nature whatever in the pope's indisposition, which might pass unnoticed except for the advanced age of the pontiff.

The pope himself is more anxious concerning the health of Cardinal Respighi, the vicar-general, who is seriously ill with influenza and about whom the pope frequently inquires.

note. This bill is one of much strength throughout. Good seats for all performances may be secured in advance. The telephone in the box office is numbered 28.

Merrimack Square Theatre
That Miss Grace Young, Lowell's most popular and beautifully gowned actress, will secure the crowning success of her career in the sketch in which she and a company of players are to be seen at the Merrimack Square theatre this week is now an assured fact. Scores of inquiries as to the time of her appearance have been asked at the box office. It is at 3:45 and 9 o'clock. The advance sale is as large as any in the history of the theatre and that many patrons who do not buy their tickets in advance will be disappointed seems certain.

In her support will be found Mr. Howard Sidney, also a local favorite. Mr. Sidney needs no introduction for Lowell theatregoers already know of his exceptional talent, while Mr. Walter Weeks, the third member comes to us with the best of recommendations. He has appeared in many of the big New York productions and is a finished actor.

"No Questions Asked," all three will be seen to advantage. The sketch was written especially for Miss Young and should be a little more opportunity than the others, but that has to do with the telling of the story. It concerns the tale of a woman with a rather exciting past, one into whose life has been crowded many added chapters. She goes west to forget it all and there the action of the piece takes place. It is a gripping playlet, clearly told, and with the attending company as interpreters will be cleverly acted.

The other acts will also hold a trio of Vandeville's best outputs, in the persons of Granville & Mack, those Italian street singers, "The Maid and the Criminal," as presented by Merrille & Hoffer and Gene and Arthur. "The Millionaire Cowboy," will be the underlined feature photo-play, and will be shown in conjunction with other films of an interesting make.

THE LAND OF LABRADOR

Missionary Tells of Dr. Grenfell's Work

At the Kirk Street church last night Mr. J. H. Halsey, co-worker with Dr. Grenfell in the Labrador missions, gave a very interesting talk on Labrador and its people. He said that the people of that region are good Christian people.

"Talk not of snow until thou hast seen the land of Labrador." Some writers years ago, used these words and times were recalled by Mr. Halsey, who said that the snow would often stay 20 feet deep, so that one could walk over the tops of the trees in the woods. Nine and sometimes ten months of the year are devoted to the raising of vegetables.

The coming of Dr. Grenfell and his associates has worked wonders in the country, however. The real problem of the people is an economic one, and this he has been working to relieve. He has not only established hospitals and homes for orphan children, but is introducing trade schools, and teaching the fishermen how to guard against the famine that sometimes come upon them in the winter.

"We have a church at Battle Harbor with a seating capacity of perhaps half this auditorium," said Mr. Halsey, "and it is a common thing to turn away as many as 500 people as can be admitted. On Saturday boats will put in from all up and down the coast, so that their crews may attend the service. I have counted as many as a hundred of them at one time. The people are deeply religious, and will accept repeated disaster, which often leaves them penniless, with true philosophy and an acknowledgment to the man higher up, as they always refer to God."

PLEASANT CANTATA
From "Olivet to Calvary" Rendered at the Worthen Street Baptist Church Last Night—Large Attendance

The congregation at the Worthen Street Baptist church listened attentively to Mander's cantata, "From Olivet to Calvary," a cantata particularly appropriate for this season, which was sung in an excellent manner last night. The soloists were Mrs. H. H. Symonds, soprano; Arthur T. Munro, tenor; and Harry Needham, bass. These talented soloists were ably assisted by a chorus composed of the following:

Roberts, Mrs. C. G. Martin, Mrs. L. L. Roberts and Miss Dorothy Hurd; also, Mrs. T. L. Taylor, Miss Laura Green, Miss Gladys Arnold and Miss Ida Wood. The accompaniment was given by Messrs. W. H. Hatten and Arthur Woodley and basses, Robert Stevenson and Donald Hanson.

In the course of the evening Rev. Dr. Frost, spoke briefly on "Love to the Utmost."

Don't Outgrow the Bread and Milk Habit

WHEN we were kids Mother fed us on that good old-fashioned dish—bread and milk. She knew it would make us healthy and lusty, because it gives all nourishment the body needs in a form most easily digested.

As we grow older, we are apt to think of bread and milk as only for children and not as the nourishing and strengthening dish that it really is for all of us of all ages. Eat it tonight—it will prove as tasty as ever and a palatable change from heavier foods.

GRAND COURT SESSION
Of Foresters Preparing For Big Class Initiation on March 20 at Odd Fellows Hall

The deputies and officers of the different courts of Foresters, who comprise the grand court held a meeting yesterday morning with Chairman John J. Barrett presiding. The chief rangers of the various courts submitted their reports which were accepted as progressive and the reports of several committees were read. Plans are being made for a large class initiation to be held March 20 in Odd Fellows temple and a large number of candidates is expected to be taken into the order. Court Middlesex will perform the degree work on this occasion. Several of the supreme and grand officers are expected to be present to witness and participate in the event. The grand court decided to hold its next session on March 16.

Is not an easy matter; but the slicing of bread, made by us with Fleischmann's yeast and King Arthur flour, is a pleasure which every housekeeper in Lowell should enjoy; then again, there's that satisfaction in doing it, that, those who will sit at your table will enjoy every morsel of the bread. Eat Johnston's bread; it does not cost any more and yet is much better.

MAN KILLED IN CHINESE FEUD

George King Shot Twice in the Back—Gambling Said to be Cause of Shooting

BOSTON, March 10.—A feud broke out in the Chinese quarter last night that resulted in the killing of George King, a member of the Chinese Four Brothers, a rival organization to the On Leong Tong.

The shooting occurred about 11:30 on Beach street, near the elevated station and just below where the overhead structure rounds the corner into Harrison avenue. The point was well selected as it is poorly lighted.

The man who did the shooting was hiding behind a post and when King, in company with his Chinese partner, Joe Wing, walked along Beach street, the fellow stepped out and fired two shots into King from behind.

One bullet struck King in the small of the back and the other hit him squarely on the back of the head. King dropped. Joe Wing rushed forward and tried to stop the shooting, but he was in vain.

Information was secured two hours after the shooting that led Sgt. Fitzgerald to go to Lynn, where a Chinaman agreeing in many ways with the description of the murderer was taken in by the police of that city as he was brought back to Boston and will be examined. The police have a large number of witnesses to whom they are able to identify him as the gun man.

LOCAL GREEK COLONY TO OBSERVE PERIOD OF FASTING AND ABNEGATION

THE GREEK CHURCH IN WHICH SERVICE WILL BE HELD

The members of the local Greek Orthodox church in Jefferson street, are preparing for the Great Lent or the Great Fast, which begins tomorrow and will last until April 21, which will be Easter. This means practically 41 days, although the Sundays are not included. The Lenten restrictions, which control the practices of the faithful followers of this church the world over, are somewhat modified for those living in this section of the world. Such restrictions are issued annually by the patriarch of Constantinople. According to the first week of Lent, no meat, milk or eggs may be eaten, and the same applies to the last or holy week. During the two weeks, vegetables, olives and fish and eggs may constitute the food. This rule, however, does not apply to those who are ill or who are infirm.

Next Sunday, March 16, will be known as Carnival Sunday, or the Festival of Orthodoxy. Ash Wednesday will follow on the 19th of March and on March 21 there will be observed the Ascension of the Holy Cross. Palm Sunday will be on the 24th Sunday, or April 22. Great Friday will fall on April 25, and in the evening of this day religious ceremonial of the exposition of the burial place of Christ will be held. At the conclusion of the service in church a procession will be held through the Greek quarters.

Every Wednesday and every Friday during Lent there will be special services. The pre-sanctified mass will be served on Wednesday and Fridays throughout Lent, the articles of the mass having been blessed at a previous service.

Before Visiting Your Dressmaker, Visit Us—For a Warner Corset

FASHION is so exacting! Soft, flowing draperies become graceless bunches over an ill-chosen or ill-adjusted CORSET. And how can a tailored coat set with jaunty grace unless the hip lines beneath are subdued to perfect harmony.

Even so small a matter as an angle of the hose-supporters may mean the making or marring of your figure—and that means the style of your gown.

A perfect-fitting WARNER CORSET is first aid to a perfect figure and perfect setting gown. The best dressed women in town recognize this and insist on WARNER'S RUST-PROOF

A large part of WARNER wearers owe their comfort, you will find, in their "SECURITY" RUBBER BUTTON HOSE SUPPORTERS, that do away absolutely with that uneasy sense the CORSET is slipping.

STEPS TO SETTLE STRIKE

John C. Dyche of New York, general secretary of the International garment workers, arrived here last night to attend the conference. The proposition to be discussed was the forming of a

The Fight Grows Harder and More Bitter

A Great Chance for the Public to Buy at Cut Prices

A piano sale here is always a sacrifice, always a bargain sale, always a markdown sale. The very nature of the business here is one of sacrifice. The business here is not conducted like the business of a regular piano store where they are expected to make a profit on each piano. We don't let any piano loaf around our floors; a sacrifice tag is clipped on which is the name of the piano and the price it is sold at. The first piano that comes in for the price marked on the tag. Price doesn't mean anything at these sales. We cut and double cut prices on all makes alike; we ask no favors, we want none, and we give none. In sales like these someone's loss is your gain, the profit is all yours. The finest instruments of the world's best makers are in the sacrifice list.

WALLED IN BY FLAMES
Man was Heroically Rescued in Winthrop

WINTHROP, March 10.—Walled in by flames and prostrated by suffocating smoke, Daniel McElroy, married, and living at 423 Winthrop street, was heroically rescued yesterday from a burning houseboat near the Pleasant Park Yacht club, by Richard Green and Louis Leach.

In the boat with McElroy at the time of the fire were Capt. W. E. Clark and Robert McLean. They fled through the smoke and flames to safety and escaped with a few slight burns. McElroy made an attempt to follow and was terribly burned about the face, hands and neck. His condition was reported to be improved last night at the Metcalf hospital and Dr. H. H. Metcalf stated he will recover unless complications develop.

The three owners of the houseboat went to the craft with the intention of boiling some tea with which they planned to repair the boat. The tea was placed in a pot on the stove and in a few minutes boiled over. The next instant the room was in flames. All three tried to escape, but the heat from the fire drove them back.

Clark and McLean managed to stumble to safety. McElroy staggered after them, but fell back in the burning boat overcome by smoke.

Thomas Fairclough, who was attracted to the scene by the shrieks, tried to rescue McElroy, and was about to give up when Richard Green and Louis Leach, aged 15 and 25, respectively, arrived in response to the cries. Three times they attempted to penetrate the wall of fire, and on the fourth attempt succeeded.

Green pushed the window through with his hands and received a deep wound. Then with Leach he picked up the form of McElroy and lifted him out through the window. The flames were rapidly creeping towards them and to escape being burned themselves they were compelled to jump through the window.

By this time the firemen arrived and after a hard fight extinguished the flames. The damage will be $100 in the meantime Chief Higgins placed McElroy in his automobile and rushed him to the hospital. His neck and face were scorched by the flames and most of the skin from his hands to his elbows was burned off. Capt. Clark's right arm was severely burned.

The black clouds of smoke which rolled into the air and hung over the nearby beachfront led the nearby residents to believe that they were on fire, and for a few minutes there was much excitement, as a stiff wind was blowing from the southwest.

The case of Mary Hurley was continued until tomorrow.

The jurors were sworn in by Clerk Ralph N. Smith and Wesley M. Wilder was appointed foreman of the jury. These jurors were then dismissed until the afternoon session, which opened at 2 o'clock.

The case of Thomas J. Burns and Martin J. Dunn, charged with breaking and entering the room of Alfred Dube situated in the lodging house of Mrs. Moran, 228 Central street, and the larceny of a pair of cuff buttons, a pins and other articles, the whole value being less than $100, on the afternoon of Feb. 13, 1913 was taken up.

Alfred Dube was the first witness and he stated that he left his room locked on the above afternoon but on returning from work, he found the door unlocked. After missing the above articles and finding his clothes ransacked he notified the landlady who immediately notified the police. He also testified that a man named Mr. O'Sullivan saw Burns enter his room and stay for a period of about five minutes.

A daughter of the landlady testified that she opened the door and admitted Burns to the house on the afternoon of Feb. 13 but she could not identify the other man as Dunn.

TWO FIRE AUTOS PAID FOR

Seagraves and Robinson Owned by City — Officer Dennett Placed on Pension Roll

There is more automobile trouble at city hall and it consists of a puncture of authority rather than tire puncture.

It seems that Commissioner Brown didn't know anything about the Seagraves and Robinson auto fire machines having been paid for until last night.

He thinks he should have been notified. The amount of the check given the Seagraves people was $556.24 and the Robinson company's check was for $560.

The fire department was forbidden to use the Robinson car until paid for. Both machines were duly purchased under contract. The injunction secured by Alderman Brown was to the Knox machine which is not yet paid for.

Police Promotions

A few months ago two supernumerary officers were tied in their civil service standing for promotion to the regular police force and one of them voluntarily gave way to the other.

The two men were William Keegan and Jerome Cullen. It was Mr. Keegan who said: "Give Mr. Cullen the place, I will wait."

Mr. Cullen was appointed and, today, the man who so unselfishly gave way to Mr. Cullen was himself appointed to the regular force by Mayor O'Donnell, not because he had acted so much the man on a former occasion, but because of the fact that he still stood at the head of the civil service list for promotion from the supernumerary to the regular force.

The mayor also made public today the appointment of Frank L. Maloney, the well known athlete, whose home is in Summer street, to the supernumerary force. He, too, stood at the top of the civil service list for appointment to the supernumerary force.

Officer Dennett Pensioned

Mayor O'Donnell stated today that Patrolman John Dennett, who recently underwent an operation at St. John's hospital for the amputation of his left leg, above the knee, would be retired on pension.

Mr. Dennett has applied for retirement and as soon as the necessary formalities have been gone through with he will be placed on the list. The pay of a retired patrolman is one half his regular pay, or $150 a day.

Requisition for Horses

Mayor O'Donnell has put in an order for twelve new horses for the board of health. The term "new horses" does not mean that the horses must be made to order, but simply to distinguish between the old and the new. Some of the horses used by the board of health at the present time are in a bad way and should either be sent to the happy hunting ground or retired to Red Acre farm.

Mayor O'Donnell very truly remarked today that the society for the prevention to animals would have protested against the use of the horses long ago but for the fact that they belonged to the city, the society, believing of course, that the city would not abuse them. The fact remains, however, that the horses have had to work despite the fact that some of them have reached the rare old age of 27 years and are battered and brutal and scarred and rent. The health department has been hiring eight horses at a cost of $1 a day per horse and that, the mayor believes, is not a very good paying investment.

Some Fire Warnings

That forest fires in Massachusetts in the past three years have caused a damage of $323,945 is the leading item in a notice sent out by State Forester F. W. Hane.

Last summer, the notice states, there were 1110 fires caused by carelessness; 615 fires caused by defective locomotives; 93 forest fires caused by clearing land; $47.75 of public money was spent in preventing and extinguishing forest fires and the total damage caused by forest fires was $50,534.

At this point in the notice appears in big black letters the interrogation: Why? The answer is as follows:

Just because someone left the camp fire smoldering.

Just because auto parties threw lighted matches, cigar stubs and cigar butts along the highway.

Just because the use of defective locomotives was permitted.

Just because we and our children were careless in handling matches when in the woods.

This great annual loss by forest fires can be stopped. Will you help?

Don't throw away lighted matches, cigar stubs or cigar butts.

Don't fail to procure a permit from the forest warden to set any open-air fire.

Don't forget that it is a prison offense to set such fire without a permit. Don't forget that you are liable to a fine, imprisonment and damages for violating the forest fire laws.

Heard of Health Cent

It was stated at city hall today that if the municipal council should proceed to hold tomorrow for a member of the board of health to succeed Mr. Osgood, Mr. John H. Drury would be

KING THREATENED

SUFFRAGETTES WHO ATTEMPTED TO APPROACH HIS MAJESTY ARRESTED

New Session of the British Parliament Opened Today--Home Rule Bill Again Introduced

LONDON, March 10.—Even King

George has not been omitted from the campaign of the suffragettes in the British Isles. Vague threats had been uttered that something would be done by them during the ceremony at the opening of parliament and while the king and Queen Mary were on their way to Westminster today five women attempted to approach his majesty in Whitehall and to hand him a petition setting forth the grievances of women. They did not succeed, however, for police were on duty in strong force and arrested the suffragettes. There was a notable demonstration of hostility against the suffragettes by the vast crowds gathered to see the royal procession and the women had to be protected from the vengeance of a mob exasperated by the recent outrages of the "millitants."

Precautions Against Suffragettes

LONDON, March 10.—In connection with the opening of the new session of the British parliament by King George this afternoon special precautions were taken to prevent interference by militant suffragettes on their male supporters. The time honored ceremony known as "searching the vaults" beneath the house of commons and the house of lords, which has been carried out on each opening day of a parliament since the attempt by Guy Fawkes in November, 1605, to blow up the king and all the members of parliament but which in later years has been performed in a perfunctory manner, was again undertaken seriously this morning. A party of yeomen of the guard from the tower of London, who are better known under the name of "beef-eaters" and who usually perambulate leisurely through the buildings were today accompanied by one of the chief officials of parliament and by inspectors of police and other high functionaries who making a thorough search for any lurking suffragettes or threats.

Threats to Create Scene

The greatest care, too, was taken in issuing tickets to ladies for the ceremony of the opening, which takes place in the house of lords. Threats had been made to create a scene when the king arrived to read his speech from the throne.

The lord chamberlain who issued the invitations sent with them a note stating that it was to be distinctly understood that the recipient of the ticket of admission accepted the fullest responsibility for the lady or gentleman presenting it and that the name must be written on it.

Along the line of route from Buckingham palace to Westminster bridge and the houses of parliament to which King George and Queen Mary drove in a gilded state carriage drawn by their famous team of cream colored horses in their brilliant equipment, strong forces of mounted and foot police and men in plain clothes were stationed to prevent the occurrence of any outrage.

Gilded Glass Coach

The opening was preceded by the familiar procession from Buckingham palace to Westminster hall, the center of the brilliant picture being occupied by the great gilded glass coach drawn by the famous Hanoverian cream colored horses, whose sole duty is to participate in these pageants.

A drizzling rain fell throughout the day but this had no effect on the tens of thousands of sightseers who lined the route to Whitehall, and kept up a wave of cheering calculated to act as a deterrent to anyone who might have had the intention of marring the function.

Talked on Balkan War

The king's speech from the throne was devoted chiefly to steps which had been taken to bring the Balkan war to an end and to the expression of the desire of the European powers to hasten the conclusion of peace.

His majesty opened with a graceful reference to the jubilee of the marriage of his parents, King Edward VII, and Queen Alexandra and to his gratitude for the affection shown by the nation to the widowed queen mother.

The portion of the speech dealing with the war emphasized the fact that all the great powers earnestly desire to prevent hostilities from spreading and to see the fighting terminated as soon as possible.

Action of British Dominions

His majesty made a pleasant reference to the action of the British dominions who had contributed war vessels to the British navy and also to the visits of Robert L. Borden, the Canadian premier and other overseas ministers to confer with the imperial ministers, which acts, he said, were calculated to promote the solidarity of the empire. Continuing, his majesty said:

"The discussions now proceeding in the Canadian parliament on matters of defense testify to the universal desire within the empire for the maintenance of the common safety."

Home Rule Bill Introduced

The forthcoming appropriations were the subjects for merely passing mention. Nothing was said to indicate whether those of the navy and the army were to be formally swollen. The forecast of them to be introduced was restricted to narrow limits. Apart from the introduction of the Home Rule and Welsh disestablishment bills the only important measures will be additional facilitation of land purchase in Ireland, the guaranty of a southern loan for the development of cotton growing, there, a bill to prevent plural voting at elections and a measure for the development of a national system of education.

Women Waved Impress

The only sign of suffragettes during the royal procession was seen when two women rushed from St. James park opposite Marlborough house while the royal coach was passing and vigorously waved papers. They were promptly surrounded by police and hustled from the spot.

Considerable excitement ensued. The crowd was strongly hostile to the women who had to be protected by the police against the howling mob, which wanted to mete out immediate punishment.

The names of the five arrested women are: Lilian Wilcox, Dorothy Smith, Kathleen Paget, Gertrude Vaughan and Grace Stuart. Each of them was armed with a rolled up petition setting forth the grievances of women.

BRYAN ADDRESSED DIPLOMATS

Told of Desire to Strengthen the Relations Between the United States and Other Nations

WASHINGTON, Mar. 10.—Sec. Bryan by appointment today formally received most of the diplomatic corps in Washington. The secretary made a felicitous speech telling the corps in the name of President Wilson of the earnest desire of the administration to strengthen the relations between the United States and other members of the great family of nations and spoke in an optimistic way of the possibility of accomplishing the result through the application of the principles of justice and equality in international dealings.

Ambassador Juergens, dean of the corps replied in a responsive strain and personally presented the members of the diplomatic body to the secretary of state. Recommendations for various diplomatic appointments came today to President Wilson and Secretary Bryan. Thomas Nelson Page was urged as ambassador to Germany, while Joseph E. Willard was presented for minister to Belgium.

CHICAGO VICE COMMITTEE HEARING

Continued Today—Jas. Simpson Questioned About Profits of Firm

CHICAGO, March 10.—James Simpson, vice president of Marshall Field & Co., was recalled to the witness chair before the state vice commission today. The room was again filled; the spectators being largely women. Simpson was again questioned about the profits of his firm and again asked to be excused from answering. He assured the commission that Marshall Field & Co. could well subscribe to any minimum wage law for women which might be adopted.

"It is inevitable," he said, "that increases would be paid by the public."

Senator Tossy asked if Marshall Field & Co. could raise the minimum wage to $2 a day without raising prices of goods to the consumer.

"It could be done," Simpson said. "George Lytleton, vice president of 'The Hub,' next faced the commission with his back to the spectators.

Leut.-Gov. B. J. O'Hara, chairman of the commission, explained that the commission desired to ascertain the relation of low wages to immorality among women.

"What we want," said Senator Juergens, "is what she must spend. Never mind the pleasures. I suppose when we make a law we'll have to add a dollar or two for recreation and the like."

"The Hub," besides its gifts, has a pension fund and sick benefits.

Witnesses pointed out, as did Mr. Simpson at a previous session that the increase of the minimum wage meant an increase all along the line. Employees must be paid according to their comparative abilities.

Joseph Basch, second vice president of Siegal Cooper & Co., who was the next witness, said that wages and immorality had no relation.

"I believe that immorality is a state of mind. I believe our girls are moral. I think a very small percentage of them could be persuaded to take the 'easiest way.'"

Siegal Cooper & Co. employ 1250 girls, about half of whom earn $5 or less.

Basch did not view the wage system with alarm.

"Promotion is very rapid in the State street stores," he remarked. "The woman who comes to us this year at $5, for instance, in two years very readily be earning $15 a week. The low salaries go to learners and development is rapid."

Basch delivered himself of a number of opinions on the training of girls. He wouldn't hire a girl under 16 years of age, he said. "She should be in school."

A minimum wage scale, he said, is a national question. Asked if his company could pay a minimum wage scale of $12, Basch said that they could for skilled services but not for unskilled.

Senator Baile, a "self made" man himself, asked how many of the great merchants of Chicago are college graduates. Witness named several of them who, he said, were like himself "graduates of the school of experience."

"The Mandel boys," he said, "were good, honest boys. They came from the ranks. Marshall Field was a poor boy. Hillman came up through the mass from a cashboy—I don't know any of them who went to college."

The town of Irvine was shaken to its foundations. Many houses, churches, schools and public institutions were seriously damaged. Ceilings fell everywhere, partitions collapsed and

MUST HELP PRESIDENT WILSON

Struggle Now Before the Nation Greater Than Any War

President Woodrow Wilson's appeal, in his inaugural address to the people of the country, summoning all honest men, all patriotic, all forward-looking men to his side, in the interest of good government, was made the basis of a sermon by Rev. Asa Reed Diltz, of Calvary Baptist church last night.

In part he said:

"We are now facing a great conflict involving the question of whether righteousness shall prevail in our governmental machine in its relationship to big business. Shall this government be for all or for a few? Shall the law take its course in the cases of rich men, as well as in the cases of poor men?"

"The greatest war in our country's history is hardly comparable with the struggle now before the nation. For years, a condition has been growing which denies equal opportunity, and is maintained by the constitution, and the worst result is not natural. The poor man does not receive the treatment in the courts which the rich man receives. Wealth too often has over-ruled justice. Courts have been situated by precedent and technicality, and justice has slept in consequence."

"This country has called to the presidential chair Woodrow Wilson, a man who, in my opinion, is well equipped to meet the many problems that have beset our nation. In brief time, but he must have assistance, as the clearly indicates in his message. He

LECTURE ON THE POPE

Rev. Fr. Murphy Gives Interesting Discourse

Last evening in Association hall a most interesting lecture on "The Pontificate of Pius X" was given by Rev. James Murphy of Rome, under the auspices of the Notre Dame Alumnae Association. The lecture was divided into three sections: a brief sketch of papal history during the last 100 years, a description of the life and work of Pius X, and a study of the present pontificate.

The speaker had some very fine colored views to illustrate his lecture. In that part where he dealt on the actual pontificate of Pius X, he showed the actual work of the pope, from the moment of his election to the death of the pope, and the various duties which he performs. He also showed the various duties which the pope performs, from the moment of his election to the death of the pope, and the various duties which he performs.

WHEN A LAXATIVE IS NEEDED—"CASCARETS."

GENTLY CLEAN YOUR LIVER AND CONSTIPATED BOWELS WHILE YOU SLEEP

Take a Cascaret tonight and thoroughly cleanse your liver, stomach and bowels, and you will surely feel great in the morning. You men and women who have headache, coated tongue, can't sleep, are nervous, and unwell, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all run down.

Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passage every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove undigested and fermenting food and feed gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the congested waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels.

Remember, a Cascaret tonight will awaken you out by morning. A laxative box from your druggist means better bowel action, a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Don't forget the children.

FAWCKETT CHURCH

Sacred Cantata, "Ruth," Was Rendered at the Vesper Service Last Evening by the Choir

The chorus choir of the Fawcett church at the vesper service last night sang the sacred cantata "Ruth," a fine musical setting of the biblical story. The choir was under the direction of Mr. S. R. Fleet, and rendered this difficult production in a very artistic manner.

There was a large congregation present and the musical numbers were a real treat. At the opening of the service the organist, Mr. Sidney R. Fleet, and Miss Murphy at the piano, played "Adoration."

The characters of the story were sung by Mrs. A. T. Rowe, as Naomi; Mrs. C. R. Park as Ruth; Miss C. M. Bartlett as "Orpah," and Mr. F. N. Ayon as "Boaz." The concert numbers were rendered by a large chorus, and the organ accompaniment was supplemented by Miss Laura E. Murphy.

GLANCING BACK IN LOCAL HISTORY

Old Directory Shows Vast Changes Since 1849—Few Men of That Day Now Alive

A directory of the city of Lowell, dated 1849, the property of Dr. Joseph A. Mohan, has found its way to the Sun office and an "old timer" who dropped in the other day to take a view of the city from the tenth floor happened to see the book, and thereby hangs a tale. To the present day fellow an old directory is of little interest, but to the man who has weathered the storms of life for many years and who looks down from the tenth floor of a metropolitan building upon the steeples of churches and roofs of great industries where cows grazed in his day, the old directory is almost a voice from the tomb.

Our very welcome visitor scanned the pages of the book, that seems very thin as compared with the city directory of today, and spoke the names of men and women who have long since crossed the great divide. He knew all of the men and women who were prominent in city life at that time and he charmed the reporters and others with his wealth of reminiscence. It seemed as if every page of the little old book was filled with tender recollections for the man of "the long ago" and his remarks about different ones, whose names are but memories, were very interesting.

The first name to catch his eye was that of J. C. Ayer. "Mr. Ayer used to run a store at the corner of Jackson and Central streets," said the visitor, "and he was a very interesting man to meet. He went into the manufacture of pills and patent medicines and you know, without my telling you, how well he succeeded. He probably did more to popularize pills and patent medicine than any other man in the world. Right here it might be added, without interrupting the visitor's reminiscence, that J. C. Ayer was probably, in a way, responsible for the new Sun building. You might say that the writer is going far a-field for the connection, but he remembers having heard Mr. John H. Harrington say that it was Dr. J. C. Ayer who gave him his first hint of type when he was a boy. He also gave Mr. Harrington his first bottle of printing ink and a piece of roller composition for ink purposes, about the size of a man's fist. With this outfit, innocent enough in appearance but terrible in its possibilities, the embryo printer marched triumphantly home and proceeded to stamp his early impressions upon the wall paper in his mother's home in Market street, and he selected the room with the best wall paper, too. What happened to the young printer when he came home was almost enough to relieve him of his ambition along the printing line, for he had been heard to say that he was soundly thrashed. Time's healing balm, however, cured the sore spots and the boy finally became a printer. It was with B. H. Penhollow, whose advertisement appears in this old directory, who had a job printing office on the third story of Wyman's Exchange building, that he vented his accumulated typographical enthusiasm, and right here we will return to the man whose memory was stirred by the old "forty-niner" directory. He spoke of B. H. Penhollow and his job printing plant and said that Mr. Penhollow was conceded to be the best printer in the city.

The Newspapers
The Lowell Advertiser appears in the directory and was printed about the very spot where the Harrington building in Central street now stands and was edited by Fisher A. Hildreth. This paper passed to other hands a few years later and I remember that Mr. Harrington told me it was the first paper he had the honor of selling. It sold for four cents a copy and was a newsworthy paper in those days was "Lowell Daily Advertiser" all about police court, and in addition to that they would sometimes hold: "A letter from Washington."

Our old friend, Clark M. Langley, was a printer in those days and he worked on the Advertiser. His brother, Solomon Langley, was a tinsmith, and one of the old time peddlers of the city. He was a very fine man. His home was in Fayette street and Clark M. boarded with him.

The next face upon the canvas, as the character sketch artist would say, was that of Oliver Marsh. He kept the Franklin book store at 91 Central street and he kept for sale all kinds of books from an almanac to a Bible. In addition to books and stationery, he sold sand for use in the old fashioned sand boxes that were used as blotters and which were superseded by the present day blotters that are given away, free, for advertising purposes.

George Molloy was another whose name appears in the old directory and our visitor remembers him very well. He said that Mr. Molloy kept a book store in Market street. He was the father of the late T. F. Molloy, the well known tenor.

Somewhere in the directory our visitor came to the name of another publication of the old days. The New England Offering. "This publication," he said, "was printed at 23 Central street and was made famous by the contributions of Lucy Larcom."

Hundreds of other names were noted by the old man and upon leaving, he said: "I have a scrap book at home that I think you could get a pretty good story from. It contains a list of the names of all the Lowell men who took part in the Civil war. I will bring it in and I think you will find it very interesting."

Pretty Little Romance
The sweetest story in the 1849 directory, as recalled by one who has seen many summers, has to do with the name of O'Neill and it is quite a romantic little story, too. Mary O'Neill was the widow of a scrap book printer and she lived in Lee street. She carried on the business in which her husband had been engaged and printed cloth labels for the Merrimack Print works. Mr. O'Neill had a daughter, Nellie, who was a very attractive girl, who afterwards became the wife of the famous bandmaster, P. S. Gilmore. At that time Gilmore was leader of the Salem Cadet band and he used to come to Lowell at frequent intervals to see his lady love. In those days street parties and dancing were all the rage and the man who afterwards gained international fame and reputation used to, on the slightest provocation, delight in taking Nellie to those parties. It is fair to assume that it was on one of these occasions that he was returning from a quilting bee or party, that he received the inspiration which resulted in the song that has been sung from that day to this all over the English speaking world. "I Was Seeing Nellie Home." He composed both the words and music and the sweet refrain was played for the first time on the O'Neill piano in Lee street. O'Neill married Miss O'Neill at her mother's house in Lee street and Mrs. O'Neill got out what were considered to be the most artistic wedding cards and invitations ever seen in these parts. One of these cards is prized to this day as a souvenir in the family of the late John Lennon whose wife was an intimate friend of Miss O'Neill and a member of the same church choir. Mrs. Lennon was present at the wedding of Miss O'Neill as one of her bosom friends.

Other Names Noted
Charles B. Coburn, founder of the C. B. Coburn Co. in Market street, worked for Mixer Pitman Co. on Dutton street, dealer in paints, oils, etc., in the days of the old directory, and his grandson, Fred Coburn, still keeps the name and the company continues to retain the confidence of the public.

It would be impossible to make even the most superficial survey of the old directory without spotting the name of Benjamin F. Butler. He had his office in the Wyman's Exchange building and the name of the law firm was Butler & Bar. Mr. Butler's directory says he boarded at 41 Central street. The mention of Butler's name recalls the name of his recognized antagonist, Theodore H. Sweetser. Both were able lawyers and fought many a famous battle throughout New England. It might be said, too, in passing that Mr. Butler seldom came out better than second best.

Jonathan Johnson, whose death occurred only a few days ago, was one of several Johnsons whose names appear in the old book. He had a jewelry store at 130 Merrimack street. At the time of his death Mr. Johnson was the oldest Jeweler in Lowell.

James G. Carney was the treasurer of the Lowell Institution for Savings. He was succeeded by his son and today the third generation is represented in the person of the present treasurer, Edward B. Carney, and the institution still retains its position of trust, honor and confidence in the community. Theodore Edson, of revered memory, was president of the Lowell Institution for Savings in 1849, and the vice-presidents were John O. Green, Eliza Huntington and John Aiken.

The man inclined to bet would be willing to wager a little something, perhaps, that the Lowell directory, in its early days, was a very interesting source of information. The number of shoe shops in those days and there were more pump makers because the water system had not yet been installed. The number of boarding houses was quite large in those days. There is one grade, however, that has fallen into innocuous desuetude and that is the trade of the bell hanger. The electric button touched the spark that put the old bell hanger out of commission.

The late Addison Putnam, in his later days was known as the grand old man of Lowell, and the little old directory supplied the information that Mr. Putnam kept a clothing store at No. 2 Appleton block in 1849. The name of Putnam has not yet faded from the locality. The names of the founders of many of Lowell's business establishments appear in the book and in passing through we note the name of Horace J. Adams. He was the founder of the Adams Furniture Co. in Central street and the same reliability that characterized this sturdy old character has come down through three generations and is retained by the company which the never ending result of the square deal process.

Some Changes Noted
While glancing through the different pages one quickly notices that very few streets and names are set down. The exception of the house of those persons residing on Merrimack and on Central streets all the residences are located by the name of the street only, such as "Ebenezer Smith, Seventy" or "Prudence Brown, Pawtucket." Possibly the gentle art of moving was not in vogue during those days; the neighborhood thereby having a chance to know one another and consequently being always able to direct a stranger.

On glancing at the designated occupations affixed to most of the names one notices, too, that the occupations were not as varied as they now are. There was a large number of carpenters, list of sawmills, grocers, druggists, doctors, tailors, blacksmiths, shoemakers and then agent and honorable tollers, but not, of course, any telephone operators or taxi-cab drivers. However, there were quite a number of stage drivers, who, no doubt, used to crack their whips along the Boston and Manchester turnpikes. And speaking of stage coaches, there are listed, too, a goodly assortment of tinkers. These gentlemen must have done a thriving business with the people who used the old stage coach, for no man could travel along the green country roads in one of those vehicles without feeling an emptiness about the waistline. Several dactylographs are also listed in the directory. This prototype of the modern "snapshottist" if alive now could no doubt hold forth at some length on the beauty of the girls who sat for their pictures in those halcyon days "before the war" and, no doubt, he would solemnly affirm—as all old gentlemen are—that they were ten times more beautiful than their great-granddaughters of today. The names of several candlemakers appear in the old directory; also that of a writing master and a beer maker, but no milk dealers are to be found. The names of more than a score of distributors of "West India" goods, solid and liquid, appear, and the chances are they enjoy a creative business as there is a long list of doctors. Besides the orthodox practitioners there were several "analytical" and "mesmeric" physicians who solicited the patronage of the public. In the amusement line the only outlet for the animal spirits of the town outings was a bowling alley. In addition to this, though, were a number of lively tables which, probably were emptied of their "high steaks" and side and span equippages on Sunday afternoons.

Restaurants and Boarding Houses
The repetition of the word "restaurant" was a puzzler. On looking it up in a dictionary it turned out to be "restaurant." The folks in those days must have had keener appetites than present day. Boneyard habits for there appeared to be as many in the city then as now. And there were scores upon scores of boarding houses—"Nancy Fogg's," "Sally Spriggle's," "Jenny McCarthy's," and these governed by many other ladies whose Christian names seemed invariably to wind up with a "y." Washwomen, too, were plentiful in 1849. The city seemed to be flooded with them; but not a Chinaman's name rubbed elbows with the others on the lists. That our granddaddies enjoyed "sleeking up" as often as young sparks of these times may be inferred by noting the names of several hairdressers in the list. These gentlemen were not tondorial artists; just plain hairdressers, or whisker-trimmers, and at that they could, it is most likely, rattle the shears and whirl the razor with the most dexterity of the present day barbers. But though the young blades of those days were scrupulous about their appearance they were not a whit more eager to shine forth in all the glory possible than the ladies, for a whole regiment of milliners were set down in the directory; besides the names of two bonnet makers. The creations concocted by these nymphs of the Goddess of Fashion, must have put some awful strain on the eyes, gratified the pocketbooks, but they probably grumbled as they have from prehistoric times and then manfully stood for the bill. Shoemakers, too, did a thriving business in those distant days. It took a whole column of them to shoe the people of Lowell, for, it must be remembered, trolleys were not at hand in those days and if one had not a coach of his own or the price of a journey on the stage it was a case of shank's mare for his or hers. Neither had the coal barons got the good folk of Lowell under their thumb in '49. This may be inferred from the long list of wood sawyers scattered through the work. As to their axes their boots, greases had been dried this many a year. Then there were quite a number of painters, who the directory quaintly classified under the one heading "sign and miniature."

The City Government
The population of Lowell in 1849 was about 10,000. Josiah B. French was mayor and the aldermen were James B. Francis, Cyril French, James H. B. Ayer, Daniel D. Crombie, Daniel Carter, George Brownell, Artemus L. Brooks and Joseph Bedlow.

There were but six wards in Lowell in those days, and they were represented in the common council as follows: Ward 1, Josiah French, John W. Wilson, John W. Smith and Alfred S. Saunders. Ward 2, William H. Flagg, Ivers Taylor, Isaac A. Morse and Ambrose Lawrence. Ward 3, Alfred Gilman, Eliza Davis, James Dinsmore and Andrew C. Wheelock. Ward 4, Nathaniel B. Fayer, Caleb Crosby, Elmer Wright and Waldo A. Fisher. Ward 5, Edward Briggs, Joshua DeCatur, Abram T. Melvin and W. W. Morse. Ward 6, William Lawson, Jeremiah M. Currier, George S. Wright and John Aiken.

The Fire Department
Aaron H. Sherman was chief of the first department in the days of the small directory and it may be interesting news to the present day firemen to learn that the firemen in those days were paid at the rate of twenty cents an hour for every hour they were actually engaged at fires or alarms.

The department was made up of a chief, 13 engineers and 24 firemen and while they received but 20 cents an hour, for the hours that they actually worked, it is not mentioned in the directory that the firemen were looking for one day off in five, pension, etc. The condition of the fireman has improved wonderfully since 1849.

Corporation Pay Days
Relative to pay days on the corporations, the directory has the following: On the Appleton, Bleachery, Machine Shop, Suffolk, Lowell and Tremont, week after the last Saturday in each month. Boot, week after first Saturday, Hamilton, week after last Saturday but one, Massachusetts and Prescott, week after the third Saturday, Merrimack, Saturday before 15th, Middlesex, Friday and Saturday after each month. Lawrence, second Saturday.

Churches and Pastors
Out of a total of 24 churches there were but three Roman Catholic churches. The list as given in the old directory is as follows:

McGraw Recruit Dies
Tom Hanley, Young Pitcher, Succumbs to Operation for Appendicitis at Merlin, Tex.
MARLIN, Tex., March 10.—The heavy hand of death was laid on Manager McGraw's big baseball family early yesterday morning when Tom Hanley, a young pitcher who had shown much promise, succumbed to the effects of an operation for acute appendicitis performed Saturday afternoon.
Hanley died shortly after 7 o'clock yesterday morning in a physician's office across the street from the hotel. He was conscious about three hours before death and bravely awaited the end after a priest had administered the last rites of the church.
Shortly after Hanley died Wilbert Robinson telephoned the news to McGraw, who ordered that no expense be spared in sending the body back to the dead youth's home in Marietta, O.

Blaze in Boat House
A slight fire in the boat house of David Bruce at the foot of Woodcock street on the banks of the Concord river was the cause of the ringing in of an alarm from box 315 early Saturday morning. Damage was slight for the work of the firemen was efficient, as usual, and the flames were extinguished without difficulty.

Boyle to Meet Kenny
Johnny Boyle of Lowell will meet Eddie Kenny of Cambridge in a bout at the Salem A. C. in Salem, Mass. tonight. The local boy is in good shape and expects to win out.

QUIT CALOMEL!
Thousands are Turning From This Dangerous Drug
A Safe Vegetable Substitute is Olive Tablets for the Liver
Dr. F. M. Edwards, a prominent physician of Ohio, has discovered a new laxative and liver tonic in a combination of vegetable materials, mixed with olive oil, which is in effect almost exactly like the old and untrustworthy calomel, except that there are none of the bad after-effects of calomel.
Dr. Edwards has long been a foe of calomel, though he recognized its value along with its dangers.
His distrust of the uncertain drug eventually started him years ago towards experiments with the view of discovering a substitute, and he is today in possession of the long-sought-for combination, which is in the shape of a little sugar-coated, olive-oil colored tablet.
The results of 17 years' experience and practice are embodied in these marvelous little tablets.
They are called Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They oil the bowels, and their effect on the liver has been the means of relief of many of Dr. Edwards' regular patients as well as to thousands of others who have suffered and were afraid of calomel.
They are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which can only be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of harmful impurities. 10c and 25c per box.

COFFEE IMPORTATIONS
Into the United States for Year 1912
The value of coffee importations in the calendar year 1912 was the largest on record, amounting to 130 1/2 million dollars, against 87 million in 1911, and 74 million in 1910. 37 million in both 1909 and 1904, and 103 million in 1902, the former high record year. The quantity, however, imported in 1912 is materially less than in certain earlier years, the number of pounds imported in 1912 being 943 million, against 1,140 million in 1909 and 1,113 million in 1904. The average price per pound of the coffee imported was, in 1912 13.6c, against 7.6c in 1909, and 6.5c in 1902. These figures represent the average price in the country from which exported, but not the price in the United States, since the law designating the method of valuing the merchandise imported into the United States requires that the selling price, or wholesale market value of the merchandise in the country from which exported be accepted as the stated value of the merchandise in the returns made to the statistical division of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. The price of imported coffee in 1912 was higher than that of recent years, though in the fiscal years 1912 and 1913 it averaged 14 1/2c per pound and in 1914, 16 1/2c. The quantity of coffee imported in 1912 was not abnormally large, the figures above quoted for that year indicating that its total was less than that for certain earlier years, the unusually high figures of value being due to high prices.

CAUS COLLIDED
Glass in Vestibule Broken When Two Electric Cars Plunged in Slight Rear-End Collision in Gorham Street
Glass in the vestibules of two electric cars which figured in a slight rear-end collision Saturday, was smashed. The cars were proceeding down the Gorham street hill near Charles street. The forward conveyance stopped to let passengers and that in the rear could not be stopped in time to avoid contact though the motorman applied the brakes immediately. The shattering condition of the tracks were partly to blame for the accident. Broken glass in the vestibules of both cars was the extent of the damage.

WILSON WILL OPEN CONVENTION

President Will Press Button Which Will Open Session in Fort Worth, Texas

WASHINGTON, March 10.—After four strenuous days in which his conferences with democratic leaders frequently were interrupted by handshakes, President Wilson today decided that hereafter he will make appointments only after 11 o'clock in the morning or for the last room in the afternoon. He plans to come to the executive office at 9 a. m. and first devote two full uninterrupted hours to correspondence and other business each day. Members of his cabinet and persons for whom he holds will not be subject to the new rule, but all others will. On cabinet days the president will see his visitors before 11 o'clock, the hour of meeting.

Postmaster General Burdett received the executive order today just a few minutes after the president's cabinet was held at the White House. Several democratic national committee-men from the west had engagements today. Senator Stone, Speaker Clark and Representative Alexander of Missouri, who were next on the list, came to discuss Wilson's changes in several important positions. Today in the east room the men of the diplomatic corps were to be presented formally to the president and on Wednesday the diplomats and their wives will meet Mrs. Wilson. Tonight at 8 o'clock the president will press a button in the White House which will open a stock breeders' convention at Fort Worth, Tex.

Secretary Garrison, after a talk with the president, said that a few days ago after the president's cabinet agreed with him that the personnel of the war department ought not to be disturbed by him for several weeks.

President Wilson's rule about discussing patronage with his visitors does not apply to members of congress. It was pointed out at the White House today that the president intended his announcement that office seekers should address themselves to heads of departments should not be interpreted as including senators and representatives, to whom the president hopes to be accessible at all times and on all subjects. Mr. Wilson intends to consult with cabinet members about the recommendation of members of congress and vice versa.

When the president was governor of New Jersey he always gave precedence to members of the legislature and when that body was in session he would always keep his door open to the legislators to come and go unannounced. Mr. Wilson hoped in that way to encourage frequent consultations about legislative matters. It is quite probable that when congress is in session he will pursue the same course and it has even been suggested that when critical moments arrive in dealing with legislation Mr. Wilson may go to the president's room at the capital to be in close touch with members of both houses.

President Wilson expects to send to the senate today the nomination of J. I. Hollister, secretary of the Pennsylvania state democratic committee, to be fourth assistant postmaster-general. It was expected that the nomination of State Senator Roosevelt of New York to be assistant secretary of the navy to succeed Beckman Winthrop would be sent to the senate today or tomorrow.

The president has before him today the question of whether he should consent to the appointment of a relative to a public office. On Saturday when Capt. Alfred Wilson of Portland, Ore., a second cousin of the president, was suggested to the secretary of war for a member of the Philippine commission, Mr. Garrison consulted the president and found him disinclined to appoint any relative to office. A delegation of westerners, however, talked again today to Secretary Garrison in the interest of Capt. Wilson and the secretary told them he would have no objection to the appointment of Capt. Wilson if the president were willing. Later the delegation called on the president on behalf of Capt. Wilson. It consisted of National Committee John Patterson of Washington, John H. Wilson of Hawaii and Z. H. Cheney of Alaska; J. C. Tobin, chairman of the democratic state committee of Washington; Judge James Ross of the Philippines; and others. The president promised to consider their recommendations.

Mr. Hollister of Seattle asked the president how soon a conference might be arranged with western senators and representatives upon Alaskan questions. The president told him the opening of the resources of Alaska was engaging his deepest thought and suggested a conference with Secretary Lane of the interior department.

Wilson Parley Breaking Up
WASHINGTON, March 10.—The Wilson family party at the White House is beginning to break up. Mr. and Mrs. John A. Wilson, the senior of the family (Mr. Wilson being the first cousin of the president and the oldest member of the clan), will leave today for their home in Franklin, Pa. Almost simultaneously Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wilson and their little daughter will go to New York and after a visit there will proceed to their home in Portland, Ore.

The White House since the morning of March 4 has been well filled with Wilsons. The only children that now remain are the two granddaughters of the president, whose parents reside here and who are in evidence to give the juvenile touch of the executive mansion.

Surprise Party
A very pleasant surprise party was held on Friday evening at the home of Miss Sadie Ingham, 5 Robinson street, in honor of Miss Bessie Fielding, who is going to California for a visit. During the evening she was presented a beautiful ring. The presentation address was made by Miss Gertrude Anderson. Readings were given by Mrs. J. Dandley and Miss G. Anderson, and music by Miss Bessie Fielding. Refreshments, cake and coffee was served by Mrs. William Ingham and Miss Ella Fielding. The decompartment of the evening was Albert I. Ingham.

POLICE COURT SESSION

Man Found Guilty of Stealing Suit

The case of Nicholas Sloan, charged with drunkenness and the larceny of a suit of clothes, was the feature of this morning's police court session. The defendant pleaded guilty to drunkenness but refused to admit the theft of the suit.

Max Wells, a second-hand clothing dealer, was the first witness and testified to giving Sloan seventy-five cents for a suit which was exhibited in court. He said that he did not know the defendant. Inspector Walsh was next called. He stated that he had followed the defendant into a bar-room and asked him about the suit in question and that Sloan had denied all knowledge of ever having seen or sold it. The inspector then proceeded to look up Nicholas on suspicion. After a short search he located the place where the man had stopped to buy the suit but could not produce him as his present whereabouts was unknown. Inspector Walsh was very positive that the suit did not get into the defendant's hands by legal methods, however.

Sloan took the stand in his own defense and related to the court how a total stranger had come up to him at the depot and deposited the suit with him to do with as he saw fit. Therefore, he Sloan, had immediately made tracks for the establishment of Mr. Wells and sold the suit for the price already mentioned. The judge, however, could not quite follow Sloan's argument and found him guilty.

The case was continued until Saturday for sentence with the hope that the owner of the wearing apparel might be brought to light.

Thomas Egan was before the court for drunkenness and upon giving his solemn promise to keep away from all alcoholic beverages was given a suspended sentence to the state farm. John Brady, a fourth offender for drunkenness, and James K. Gilbride, a third offender for the same offense, were given indefinite periods at the state farm.

David Cote, George Wingley and John Neary were fined $5 for their second appearance within a year for drunkenness and Joseph St. Lawrence paid $5 for the same offense on Sunday.

Eugene Ducharme was committed to jail for a stretch of four months for being a confirmed drunkard. Patrick J. O'Brien pleaded not guilty through his counsel, Col. Carmichael, on condition from Saturday and asked to have the case continued. Judge Enright continued the case until tomorrow morning.

Fourteen first offenders were released on the recommendation of probation officer Hattery and one second timer for drunkenness was fined two dollars.

SQUAD OF POLICEWOMEN

Chicago Mayor in Favor of Plan

CHICAGO, March 10.—Mayor Carter Harrison returned from New York last night with a plan of having women police here. He said it might be possible to have several women placed as inspectors when the police reorganization plan is effected.

"My idea is that we should have a squad of, say, 30 or 40 policemen," said the mayor. "I believe they would handle many matters of police work better than men do. For instance, in vice work, investigating complaints of women, who are held in resorts and similar places, they could get much better results than men."

DEMAND WAGE INCREASE

N.Y.N.H. & H. Employees Want More Pay

NEW YORK, March 10.—The New York, New Haven & Hartford R. R. Co. announced today that all the company's employees engaged in electrifying the system had served demands on the company for an increase in pay, shorter working hours and other concessions. The increase demanded averages 25 per cent. over the present wages. The company has been given until March 18 to reply to the demands, should there be no reply by that date Mr. Green, the organizer, said, the men will walk out. The men also say the Union they came traveling to and from work should be included in the day's work and that nine hours shall constitute a day. Mr. Green said the men would meet in New Rochelle on March 17 to discuss the company's reply, if received or to decide when to walk out.

Proposed Interurban Road
BOSTON, March 10.—The legislature extended 15 months yesterday the time within which work must be begun on the proposed interurban electric railroad from this city to Providence. It. The company was organized three years ago but its charter rights expired on Dec. 31 last. The promoters explained that entrance into Providence was expected over the route granted to the Boston New England railroad. Locations for the line in this state have been filed and approved by the railroad commission and the route practically parallels that of the Providence division of the New York New Haven & Hartford railroad.

No Charge For Meter Installation
BOSTON, March 10.—Governor Foss approved today a bill which prohibits gas companies charging meter installation to consumers who take more than $7 worth of gas annually.

MEN'S MISSION OPENED

With Big Attendance at the Immaculate

MISSIONS CLOSED IN FRENCH PARISHES

Notes From the Other Churches—Rev. Fr. Burns Preached at St. Peter's

At the Immaculate Conception church last evening, a week's mission for men was opened by Rev. Joseph Stanton, O. P., of New Haven, who conducted a most successful retreat at that church two years ago. He preached at the parish mass yesterday and gave the opening sermon at the mission last night.

He took for his subject, "The Last Judgment," preaching a powerful sermon upon the consequences of sin and the necessity of repentance for all who wish to be saved. He pointed out the fact that God has given man free will to do right or wrong, to repent or to continue in sin. For those who desire to be with the elect on the last day, the mission offers an extraordinary opportunity for grace and forgiveness. Rev. Fr. Stanton told of the many recent sudden deaths that came to his attention while giving missions in other cities, showing that men who refused to respond to the call to grace had died in their sins. He appealed to the men to attend the mission faithfully in order that they may obtain God's grace, so as to begin life anew and continue in a manner that will ensure their eternal salvation.

Masses will be said in the mornings at quarter past five and the service will conclude ten minutes of six, so that those who have to go to work will not be kept too late. The evening services during the week will be at 7.30 o'clock. There were about 2000 men at the opening of the mission last night.

St. Peter's

Rev. John F. Burns preached a thoughtful sermon on the gospel of the day at the parish mass at St. Peter's church yesterday. He referred to the Lenten season, the closing days of which are drawing near, and felt the time most opportune for receiving holy communion and thus secure the graces of Almighty God. Rev. Daniel J. Herferman was the celebrant.

Preparations go on apace for the part the Holy Name society will assume in the parade on March 25. Rev. John F. Burns, who is ever solicitous for the organization, is hopeful of a splendid showing on that day.

St. Patrick's

The celebrant of the parish mass at St. Patrick's church yesterday was Rev. James Kerrigan, and Rev. Joseph Curtin preached a forceful sermon on the gospel of the day. At 6 o'clock in the evening the regular spiritual meeting of the members of the Holy Name society was held in the lower church, with Rev. Joseph P. Curtin, chaplain, officiating. Prayers were offered and a very interesting instruction on the work of the society was given by the chaplain. At the close of the service proceeded to the upper church, where Holy Hour devotions were held. Rev. Joseph Curtin officiating. The ceremony, which was very largely attended, closed with the benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

A very successful bean supper was held in G. A. R. hall Saturday evening for the benefit of the parish. The affair was conducted by the Ladies' Aid society, Miss Josephine Murphy, president, and under the auspices of Mrs. Daniel O'Brien.

St. Joseph's

The married men's mission at St. Joseph's and St. Jean Baptiste churches came to a close yesterday afternoon and evening. Rev. Fr. Giguere, O. M. I. of Montreal, Que. officiated at both services, and he left this noon for New Bedford, where he is to conduct another two weeks' mission.

Over 2000 men gathered at St. Joseph's church yesterday afternoon for the closing exercises of the retreat. The ceremony was a most impressive one, especially when the large congregation of men stood up in the church with a lighted taper in their hands, and renewed the baptismal vows. Appropriate singing was given by the choir under the direction of Mr. Frank Courdeau and the service closed with the benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. Rev. Charles Paquette, O. M. I. officiating.

The closing of the mission at St. Jean Baptiste church was at 6.30 and was also very largely attended. Rev. Joseph M. Blais, O. M. I. officiated at the service.

ANOTHER ACT OF ARSON

Is Charged Against the Militant Suffragettes

LONDON, March 10.—To militant suffragettes today is ascribed another act of arson. Early this morning the Sanderson station in the Great Western railroad was set on fire and burned to the ground, together with all its contents. Sanderson is about 35 miles from London in Buckinghamshire. Two placards were found in the vicinity on which were painted the words, "Burn 15 to get the vote" and "Votes for Women." The fire brigades from the neighboring towns found it impossible to save anything.

Another station, Croxley Green, about three miles to the north of London on the London & Northwestern railroad, also was burned down this morning, but the cause of the fire has not been ascertained.

ASSAULTED BY ROBBERS

Chicago Salesman in a Serious Condition

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., March 10.—A man believed to be G. A. Gould, salesman for a beef packing company of Chicago, was in a serious condition at the Portsmouth hospital today as a result of being assaulted by robbers at Kittery Point, Me., near here late last night.

The police began a thorough investigation of the holding in an attempt to ascertain the identity of the robbers, who, after cloaking the man, departed with his valuables. The amount of money he had on his person was not known.

The motorman of an Atlantic shore electric railway found the man on the track. He was removed to the hospital and taken to the hospital. Early last night the salesman from Chicago inquired for a man named Harris, who is supposed to be the owner of a drove of cattle.

"Leave to Withdraw"
BOSTON, March 10.—Petitioners for an investigation of the United Shoe Machinery Co. were given "leave to withdraw" in a report to be submitted to the legislature today by the committee on mercantile affairs.

No one appeared either for or against the measure at the formal committee hearing.

Live Bits of Sport

The Worcester team will, in all probability, be the highest salaried team playing the New England circuit this season. Burkett has evidently decided to do his best to annex another league pennant and is not letting the matter of salaries bother him in his efforts. The other managers are striving to cut down the salary limit but the Worcester manager seems to be a stumbling block in their path of economy. Lyons also will have some highly paid men included in her outfit this year.

Baseball will soon be in full swing again and the other sports will be relegated to the minor. No matter what may be said on the subject, the fact remains that the baseball leagues play the form of sport that is most appreciated by the American public. Lowell has always proved a good ball town and with the added inducement of the finest bleachers and stands in the circuit this season should be the most profitable from both the spectators' and the owners' viewpoint that a local team has ever had.

A Boston paper comments this morning on the uplift to the game that Puckey McFarland has given by his model habits and his pleading manner. This same article brings to the writer's mind the time when a local boxer was known from coast to coast as "Gentleman Jim." When it comes to clean, gentlemanly conduct, both in the ring and out of it, there never was a more scrupulous exponent of the ring than Jimmy Gardner, that major, Joe Thomas is also a figure that stands out prominently when a question of refinement is raised. If some of the reformers who are always howling about the brutality of the game and the ruffianism of its participants could only be brought into contact with some of the boxers of this type there would be a great many surprises.

Tonight's bout in Salem between Bay Wood and Matty Baldwin should be a lummer from start to finish. The Charleston boxer is reported to be in fine shape and will certainly have to be when he meets the tough little Frenchman. Wood is picked by the odds to win or at least to gain a shade on a draw decision.

Howe the colored flier of the English high track team certainly lived up to expectations. For three laps or better it would be a hard matter to find a sprinter to beat this boy whether he be in the high school class or not. Howe did not show his stride until the stretches were reached and even at that his true form did not show until the last lap in both the 200 yards and the relay. For a strong, powerful, aggressive quarter-mile, the Boston school captain has no equal in the schoolboy ranks throughout the country.

Both Tarkin Trull and Charlie Carter threatened to beat Howe in the first two laps of the 200 yards and relay respectively. The latter especially appeared to be a winner over him in the final event of the evening which both men started but the last lap showed the wonderful finishing powers of Howe. Carter and Trull, however, ran splendid races against a man that they knew was a whitewash and whereas some athletes would have acknowledged defeat before entering the race, these two boys undoubtedly covered the distance in the fastest time that they had ever been clocked when up against the crack from the Hub.

DIAMOND NOTES

The Cleveland club is trying the experiment of giving a trial to an amateur pitcher. He is a Willard G. Tabor, a young giant, who twirled for an amateur team in Manchester, N. H., last year.

Bub Lowe, the veteran Detroit scout, is considering deserting baseball to go into the real estate business in Detroit, permanently. He has been playing his new vocation in a trial sort of way through the winter.

Buck Weaver, the White Sox shortstop, leaving to the left-handed, it was not satisfied with his right-handed average last year.

At Orin of the National league staff of umpires, the former "curvilinear wonder" has taken charge of the baseball squad of Washington and Lee university, in Lexington, Va.

Dudley Farnsworth, a schoolboy from the Rockland military academy, is practicing with the New Yorks, in Bermuda and has made an impression as a third baseman. Chance may offer him a contract.

Zeb Terry, shortstop for the University of Stanford baseball team, is pronounced by Dick Eagan, the famous Cincinnati scout, as the most promising ball player he has seen in years. "He knows how to play, to do the right thing at the right time, and he is a smart player. Add to this his natural ability and you have a big league" exclaims Eagan.

Only a lightweight, tipping the beam at 135 pounds, but he stands five foot ten. He has been sought by the Portland Canons and many other clubs have lined out for him. Terry finishes up at college in May and he has not decided as yet if he will take a fling on the diamond.

According to advices received from Martin, Tex., the New York national's trailing runner, Rube Marquard, the Giants' star left-handed pitcher, who won nineteen straight games last summer, will report to Manager McGraw in Martin on March 20. McGraw has received assurance through a third party that Marquard will report to the Giants at the end of his theatrical engagement which closes in Los Angeles at the end of next week.

Manager Frank Chance of the Yankees and hard-hitting pitcher, who won twenty-one games last season, more squarely than by his prediction that the Giants would win the National league pennant this year and that the Cubs would finish fourth, one notch behind the Reds. All that is needed now is for the prediction to prove true and Chance's revenge on Murphy will be complete.

Late reports have it that Johnny Evers is already beginning to show the strain of his managerial duties. In such an event it is going to be hard for the Cubs' director to play up to his standard game. Evers' disposition was never too sunny. John is very nervous and with the additional strain it would not be surprising to learn of a breakdown.

Enna Rixey has reiterated that he will join the Phillies next June, when he completes his course in the university of Virginia. In the meantime the elongated hurler is helping coach the nine of his alma mater and incidentally doing a little training himself, so that he will be in ship shape when he reports.

As a new form of exercise the White Sox in California are playing racquet and soccer football.

Joe Birmingham is trying to develop Buddy Ryan to take his place regularly in center field, so that he will be able to manage the Clevelanders from the bench.

Hal Chase of the New York Americans has regained his ankle and will be out of practice for probably two weeks, according to cable advices received in New York from Bermuda. The sportsman says that Chase was covering second base when a player, sliding, struck him and twisted the ankle.

Dockery Asst. Postmaster General WASHINGTON, March 10.—Former Governor Alexander Dockery of Galatin, Mo., has been chosen for third assistant postmaster general. He formerly was a representative in congress. It was announced that his nomination would go to the senate today.

Gov. Sulzer to Withdraw Bill ALBANY, N. Y., March 10.—The Stillwell Well bill which proposes to double the present tax on transfers of stock is to be withdrawn, it was announced today by Governor Sulzer. The measure was recommended by the governor's committee of inquiry as a means of increasing the state's revenues.

LOCAL ALLEYS CROWDED

Numerous Games Rolled Saturday Night

Several of the usual Saturday night matched games proved very close and interesting and the local alleys were crowded to their capacity in spite of the rise in temperature.

In the Crescent Two-man bowling league there were two games played. A very rare thing happened in the match between Team 12 and Team 20, both quieted putting up the same total of 331. Team One beat Team 11 by the score of 392 to 545. Panton of Team One was high man with 302.

The Giants second team won their match from the Salem A. C. in a rather slow game by the score of 1003 to 322. Both teams rolled with four men.

The Tremont & Suffolk bowlers were the winners in their match with the Appleton team by a runaway score. The former outplayed their opponents nearly a hundred pins. William McDermott of the winners was high man with 284.

The Dinghats were easy victors in their game with the Wonders. Each team was composed of three men and three women.

The Spinning team defeated the Weaving team in their Bay State mill match by the score of 1218 to 1139. Hulme was the high man with 258.

MUNICE AND MEYERS

Charlestown Boxers to Meet in This City

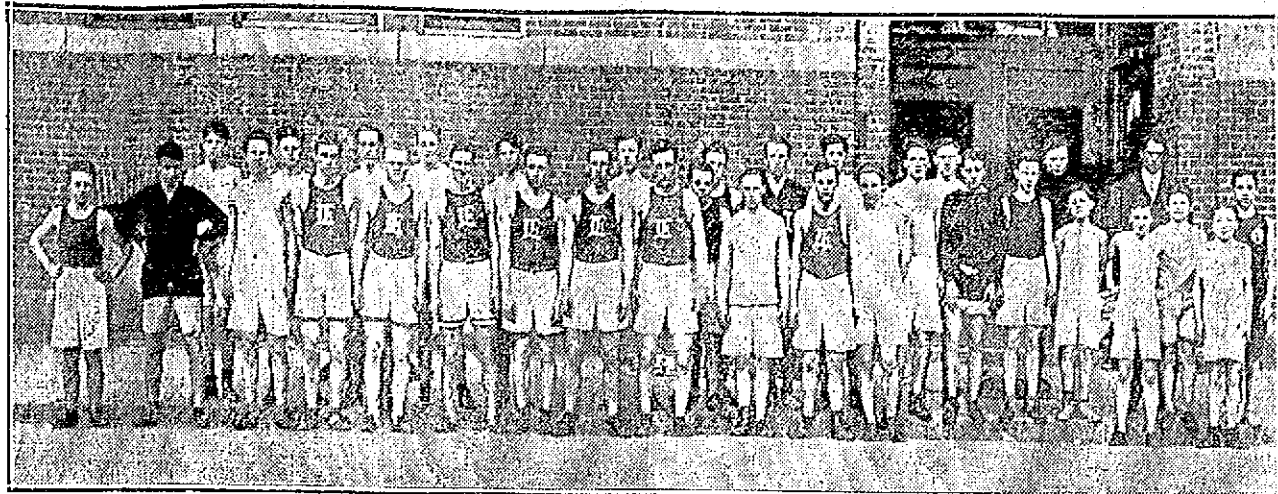

A feature of this week's meeting of the Lowell Social and Athletic club will be the match out in which two Charlestown boxers will appear and the leadership of the district promises to be thrust out to the king's table in the meeting between Johnnie Meyer and Henry Meyers, the feather-weight rivals, who will struggle in a 12-round bout for the Bunker Hill championship.

Meyers comes from the other side of the Hill, and has been boxing a few years longer than Munice. For the latter to claim him is the champion of the division was enough to ride the feelings of the boy who has forced K. O. Brown and Pat Moore to step aside the fastest to win. Meyers against boxers near his own weight never failed to make good, and the same applies to Munice. Now that the pair are to meet in a fight which will find them at their best, it is worth traveling a distance to see will be on tap.

Johnny Boyle, the local lightweight, will appear in the semi-final against Roddy McDonald, a very lively and clever boxer. Boyle is stepping along with a fast pace these days and feels confident that he will add another win to his credit. McDonald, too, is quite confident and expects to be returned the winner. Young Conney and Young Sullivan will meet in one of the six round bouts and Finney Boyle, brother of Johnny and Young Connelly will clash in the other preliminary.

TRACK TEAM OF THE LOWELL HIGH SCHOOL WON VICTORY OVER BOSTON ENGLISH HIGH SATURDAY NIGHT—OTHER ITEMS

THE LOWELL HIGH SCHOOL TRACK TEAM

Lowell high was the winner in their dual track meet with English high of Boston at the local indoor track at the school annex Saturday night. The well balanced team that the Lowell boys placed on the track and their familiarity with the track were the two reasons for the win. The final score was Lowell 45, English High 32.

Howe, of the visitors was the individual star beyond any dispute and showed the spectators a brand of running that has seldom been seen in this city. Howe showed himself a good man in the field events as well as on the track and captured both the shotput and high jump without much apparent exertion. Howe gave a great exhibition in the 300 yard dash running in second place until the last lap had been reached. Captain Bailey received a bad fall on the first bank of the color wheel and would not have had the easy time that he did have in this dash. His winning of the 300 yard dash was also a revelation to the track fans. Howe started from behind and did all his running in the last ten yards of the race and pulled in a handy winner over the three Lowell men who lived through for the final.

The running of Perry in the mile run was another surprise to those who had not followed the distance runners in their work this season. This boy has been running along from behind in every meet this year and showing a tremendous finish but has always been so far in the rear that his chances of placing were very small. Last night, however, he ran a different style race and took the lead at the outset and was never headed after the first lap had been traveled. Bowers also showed a fine burst of speed in the 1000 yard run which carried him home a winner on the last two laps.

Cunningham, a boy who has shown signs of great promise throughout the season, took first place in the hurdles. This lad showed good form and his win over the three boys would probably have been the same if allowances had not been made for his "L."

The meet, taken as a whole was one two points on agreement. Height—5 feet, 4 1/2 inches.

Score—Lowell 15, Boston 12.

300 yard dash: Won by Howe, Boston; Cahill, Boston, second and McCallan, Boston, third. Time—41 seconds.

Score—Lowell 19, Boston 26.

35 yard hurdles: First heat won by Cunningham, Lowell and Bailey, Lowell.

Second heat of semi-finals won by Cunningham, Lowell and Spalding, Lowell, second. Final heat won by Howe, Boston; Cunningham, Lowell, second and Carter, Lowell, third. Time—3:25 seconds.

Visconte is considered one of the best Italy has turned out since the days of Dorando.

Longboat has been running some good races of late and is in fine trim. Should he defeat the Italian he will issue a challenge to Billy Quail, the American, and William Kolehmainen, the Finn.

THE TOLLS QUESTION

The controversy over the decision of congress to exempt our coastwise trade from tolls in passing the Panama canal, still goes merrily on.

The officials of America have sought to justify her position. England has reiterated her protest, and the resources of diplomacy seem to have been exhausted. Some of the most brilliant minds in this country take the stand that America acted hastily and without due regard to treaties already existing with England. Public opinion is strongly divided as to the merits of the case, some holding that America is justified, others insisting that the exemption of our ships is a stain on our national honor to preserve which should be our first consideration.

At the recent banquet of the New England traffic club at the Copley Plaza hotel in Boston this question of the Panama canal tolls was dwelt on by Congressman Stevens of Minnesota and Sims of Tennessee, the former a republican who was for several years chairman of the congressional committee on the canal, and the other a democrat who is at present a member of the committee on interstate and foreign commerce. Neither spoke from a party standpoint but each gave his personal opinion as to what our future procedure should be on the tolls question. Congressman Stevens declared himself emphatically in favor of arbitration, saying in part, "The United States has been first among the countries of the world in insisting upon the peaceful arbitration of international questions and now our good faith is to be put to the test." The democratic congressman on the other hand declared that not only our international honor but our future prosperity is seriously affected by the regulation as passed by congress. He thinks the most direct solution of the dilemma is that congress should reconsider its action and declare against free tolls.

In outlining the effects of the present policy if continued, each congressman brought out some interesting points, consideration of which might materially aid the declaration of our national conscience in favor of arbitration of the question or repeal of the present law. In all international questions nations are governed largely through a regard for material prosperity. When national honor and national gain are each served by a certain decision everything goes smoothly, but when a call comes for action that subserves honor but endangers prosperity, it is difficult to obtain unanimity of action. The congressmen in their Boston speeches declared that the exemption of American coastwise traffic from the payment of tolls would be a national injury rather than an advantage. As such exemption only refers to ships trading exclusively in domestic trade between American ports, and as an extension of traffic to foreign ports would mean the withdrawal of the tolls privilege, it would tend to restrain commerce and prevent the extension of our traffic to the Latin-American countries, which is the greatest possibility of the Panama canal. Again, the federal laws which prohibit any foreign ship from doing a coastwise business have tended to make our coastwise shipping an absolute monopoly, and as such it would be benefited by the exemption of tolls without any direct good accruing to the people from whom the cost of the canal must ultimately come. Such an exception, therefore, favors of the special privilege now so universally condemned as a foe to good government.

In the question of Panama canal tolls, America has taken a stand that reflects on our international honor. Not only does England protest against it but many of our most prominent public men take the same view. It is therefore time that the wrong, if wrong has been done, should be righted. For the purpose of considering the question from all possible angles the most feasible and logical course open to us is to subject the matter to an impartial tribunal of arbitration. Should an adverse decision be given we should accept it instantly, the hurt to our national pride being partly soothed by the consciousness that a sense of our just dealings will be re-established abroad, and a better prospect for commercial prosperity established at home.

A NEW MENACE

The New York World calls attention to the fact that though for many years our presidents were safe from the attacks of the assassin, three of them have fallen by his hand in comparatively recent times. This points to a lawless element that has grown into our civilization, the products of which are now apparent to all who read the daily newspapers. Since District Attorney Whitman set out to uncover the graft of New York he has received letters that threaten the lives of himself and family. So persistent were these threats that he deemed it advisable to send Mrs. Whitman and his son out of

New York to a place of greater safety, until the agitation has died down. Within the last few years Mayor Gaynor and Theodore Roosevelt were each a target for bullets, and the election of Woodrow Wilson to the presidency called forth letters of a threatening nature from some mountaineers in Virginia. It is now found necessary to guard our presidents with all the caution that is exercised in the case of old world monarchs.

This new menace is not a native production. It has been born of foreign discontent and is the result of the extreme socialistic and anti-religious agitation that is manifested in many European countries. False leaders have arisen and led many astray temporarily. In the desire for social betterment some seek to break down all the barriers of law and moral restraint, and no means that will further these ends are disdained, though it means the murder of the best and greatest of men. To them nothing is wrong that will result in ultimate right, as they understand it, and as the end sought is personal independence and the abolition of all authority, human and divine, it can readily be seen that the greatest crimes committed in furtherance of their cause are viewed as virtuous acts. Nothing but the sternest application of restrictive legal measures will stamp out this hideous crime. The men who kill, or threaten to kill, are usually fanatics or those in whom the workings of conscience or the sense of moral responsibility has been dulled. With the growth of a greater spirit of humanity all over the world there may be a speedy end to this unreasoning hate against all who symbolize authority, but for the present the laws must be made specific and adequate in order to prevent such pernicious activity as that which resulted in the death of Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley.

THE APARTMENT HOUSE

All over the country and particularly in New England the apartment house is becoming more and more popular and in Lowell the movement in that direction is just beginning. The tendency may be deplored but it cannot be ignored. The apartment house was protested against, tolerated, finally commended, in Worcester and Providence state apartment houses do best residential sections, Brookline, the Back Bay, and other neighborhoods where the wealthy residents of Boston reside, have them in abundance. Even on New York's Fifth Avenue they rear their massive and often palatial exteriors beside the private mansions of the wealthiest and most aristocratic residents.

The diversity of interests and pleasures which now call people from home and the difficulty of securing domestic servants, have made the apartment house a necessity of modern times. To some who inhabit them they are necessary evils, to others they are the last word in home comfort and convenience. They do away with much of the old romance that surrounded the home with its privacy and opportunity for individual expression, and so may be deplored by the romantic and the sentimental. On the other hand they eliminate the old annoyances of the boiler that refused to work properly, the lawn that must be cut, the coal bin that had to be replenished, the cook that persisted in changing her position with every change in the weather. Apartment houses have not yet reached a rent level that makes them available to the lowest in the social scale, and so cannot be very detrimental to adjacent property. They are a product of the times and though now condemned in some quarters, they will be one of the familiar sights of all our cities in a very few years. They are coming up in Haverhill, Worcester, and other cities and are bound to secure a place in Lowell whether we like them or not. The new conditions have made them a necessity.

THE NEW NICKEL

The general reception of the new nickel has established a variation of the old asperation that Americans desire money above all things and are not at all particular how they acquire it. Modern Americans, however, seem very particular about the style of coins they crave. The new nickel has offended the aesthetic sense of most people. It is wonderful indeed how many art critics and students of natural history it has brought to light. The features most criticized are the very undifferentiated Indian and the poor buffalo who is forced to painful gymnastic feats to confine his herculean to a restrictive circle. The designer not only has given him a very strained attitude but belittled him with a style of whisker that is generally thought most unbecoming. Possibly much of this criticism is prompted by regret for the fair lady with the liberty cap who is to be discarded. But though reduced to association with such discreditable company as bison and Indians there is no immediate cause for regret. She shall gladden us by her presence for a long time to come.

SIR THOMAS LIPTON

The challenge sent by Sir Thomas Lipton has ensured the fact of another international yacht race between England and America in the near future. The distinguished Irishman shows himself possessed of those qualities that we admire in all sportsmen worthy of the name—pluck, good nature, and perseverance. The three races already run have established beyond doubt not only the superiority of the American yacht, but also the superiority of the spirit of Lipton to defeat. As far as the result of the coming contest is concerned, America does not fear the outcome but will await calmly the coming of the fourth "Shamrock."

If President Wilson chooses other candidates for public office as cautiously and successfully as he has his cabinet there will be but little public criticism of his determination to deny personal interviews to office seekers. His rule is a very wise one and does not one an injustice, as the man who cannot get his acts or some other person to speak well of him to the president, would scarcely be taken seriously in self-laudation. Some disappointed ones will grumble of course but the murmurs of discontent will be drowned in the chorus of approval.

Seen and Heard

The provoking thing about it is that the people who snore are themselves the soundest of sound sleepers.

You can't fill a boy's heart with joy by giving him a tooth brush for a present.

To preserve his peace of mind, the professor never reads the paper after it is printed.

As any Californian will tell you the climate of California is still absolutely perfect, although it may be marred occasionally by the weather.

The girl who has been saving to get money enough to buy a new muff now has eight months in which to complete the undertaking.

The man who has had the grippe might as well make up his mind that the world isn't going to give him one quarter part as much sympathy as he deserves.

The mountains in Switzerland are really very high even in comparison with the rates at the fashionable Swiss hotels.

The man who has made a garden before may make one again this year, but he has given up all hope of growing any tomatoes as big as those pictured in the seed catalogues.

Don't think that a man is absolutely regardless of himself just because he tells you: "I'm not in business for my health."

The Frenchman doesn't like to be called Johnny Crapaud, and yet the uniforms of all the French military officers all have frogs.

If the young doctor is really handsome, it isn't surprising that the girls want him called every time they have a headache.

The confidence man presumably is so called because he doesn't deserve anybody's confidence.

Conversation, to be really successful, needs to be carried on between two people, one of whom is bright, and the other appreciates brightness and is glad to show appreciation.

When a man buys his first dress-suit, he aims to get one that is solid and strong enough to last a thousand years, but the second suit-case he buys is likely to be light, if rather flimsy.

SPRING

The light of Spring is in the sky

Clear pleasant afternoon.

The robins are watching for

Will be here pretty soon.

The trees, waked from their winter's sleep,

Will soon begin to bud.

And soon in the suburbs new

Are wading through the mud.

The snowdrops shy are peeping out,

All pure and undebated.

The daisies are growing longer and

The air is growing milder.

There's something in the thought of

Spring

That always stirs the blood.

And mends the suburbanite

Goes ploughing through the mud.

The maples glow with reddish hue,

The blue buds are green.

The cherry cabage scent skunk

Within the woods is seen.

Soon we shall hear the annual tale

Of Mississippi's flood.

While here at home we daily lose

Our rubbers in the mud.

—Somerville Journal.

WHEN MY SHIP GOES OUT.

Not when my ship comes in I look

For treasures rare.

But when my ship goes out, then

Will I seek them there.

Laid up above where loved ones

dwell.

For where the treasure is, so they tell,

There will the treasure be.

And if they come to others, why not to me?

They were to me bright, beauty gems of wealth untold.

I pressed them to my heart and would them closely hold.

And thought that I might always keep them here.

Those little priceless gems to me so

dear.

I was so proud with happy thought,

For gems like mine, I said, could never be bought.

One day the Angels came and said,

"You now must give them up."

And to my lips was pressed the deep and bitter cup.

I drank it all, then prayed to die,

For I knew not of life beyond the sky.

And as they claimed them for their own.

My heart cried in sorrow's moan.

Oh, spare me one sweet gem, I said, one little jewel bright.

To cheer my lonely home and make my heart more light.

You surely have enough within your home.

Why do you come for mine and leave me here alone?

The Angel answered me and said, "I must go.

'Tis by the Father's will I take your gems away."

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Parents and Schools

Portland Express: Seven hundred Cleveland children, supported by their parents, recently went on strike. The reason was an allegation that their school building was a firetrap and also in danger of collapse. It is interesting to note that not until satisfactory steps were taken to remedy the existing evils was the strike declared off. It is a point worth noting that in one instance at least parents are taking some cognizance of the welfare of their children in school. A parental understanding of the conditions under which their boys and girls study would be a fine thing for every community. It would mean the compulsory installation of safety and sanitary devices, that would result in a stronger and healthier rising generation. The parents are the ones, above all others, who should keep our schools up to the standard of efficiency.

Reforestation

Lynn News: Whatever the state may do, however, individuals who are owners of waste land, should for themselves consider the possibility of replanting this land with trees. A good work of this kind in some years brings a good return, and the annual expenditure is practically nothing. Recent legislation has also helped the matter. In the way of taxation, the owner of such land should take note of the fact that the state is willing to instruct them in what may be done, or to cooperate with them in the replanting. It is worth thinking about.

England Castles

Foster's Democrat: England not only excludes foreign military air craft, but rules that any person violating the law is liable to be fired upon. To make the exclusion more effective, when they are over the coast, the remains of spring aviators; then, with the whole countryside armed and scanning the sky, no foreigner would ever risk a flight over the light little isle.

A Contrast

Burlington Free Press: There is a marked contrast between President Taft's gentlemanly and generous treatment of his successor in the White House and the way in which Roosevelt left Washington in a half while his choice for the presidency was being introduced into office. And yet some people honestly believe to this day that Taft deserted Roosevelt.

Clinical

Lowell Sun: The democrats of the senate seem to have the control of the situation, present pro tempore, selected, and chaplain, and sergeant at arms.

Senator Clark, if the senators' refusal against his gavel, can direct his sergeant at arms to take the guilty in charge. When it's too much for Biggins, President Clark can direct his chaplain Pierce to call on Providence.

So far as concerns the senate, the democrats seem to be untroubled in the strong positions. They just saved their bacon.

House of Pundits

North Adams Transcript: Representative Chamberlain of Springfield in opposing a pension scheme the other day told the legislature it would be well to stop providing pensions for well old officials until something is done for the common people, many of whom, he said, are only two weeks from the poorhouse when they find themselves out of work. There is a tendency just now to overdo the pensioning business, and it ought to be checked.

ON SMOKE ABATEMENT

Lecture by W. H. Gerrish to Engineers

Lowell Association, No. 17, N. A. S. E., held a very largely attended meeting on Friday evening, the occasion being a lecture on Smoke Prevention and Abatement, by William H. Gerrish, chief smoke inspector of the city of Boston. Mr. Gerrish, who, by the way, is a native of Lowell, is considered an expert on this subject and has accomplished wonders in the elimination of smoke in Boston and vicinity. He spoke for over an hour and handled his subject in a plain and logical manner. He started by explaining what smoke is and how it is formed, and the difference between smoke from boiler furnace fires and fumes from furnaces for heating metals and from chemical works. He then took up the matter of the coal we have to use in the eastern states, such as Pocahontas, New River, Georges Creek, etc., and explained the difference between them and western coals, which are high in volatile matter, consequently more liable to smoke. The eastern coals contain about 17 to 20 per cent volatile matter against 35 to 40 per cent in western coals and showing that the engineer or fireman in this section of the country has a far easier time preventing smoke and getting good combustion than his western brothers.

The subject of boiler furnace construction was next taken up and the speaker showed by sketches on the blackboard different types, and stated that the fault with most smoke furnaces was that the grate was too near the boiler, the result being that the products of combustion before they have a chance to combine with the air, and letting them go to the chimney uncombined.

Mr. Gerrish next took up the subject of smoke preventing or consuming devices and explained by sketches the construction and operation of the different ones used in and about Boston. He stated that there were five ways of avoiding smoke, viz., by using anthracite or hard coal; anthracite in the small sizes, birdseye, buckwheat, etc., mixed with bituminous in the proportion of two to one. Second, mechanical stokers, steam combustion turbines, or jets over the fire and by very careful hand firing. He also explained the devices and methods used to prevent smoke in wood working establishments and why that problem was a different one from the others.

After the lecture, Mr. Gerrish invited those present to ask questions and for some time he was kept busy answering them. This part of the program proved to be as interesting as the lecture itself and showed that the engineers and firemen or at least those present were very much interested in this subject and very anxious to learn all they could about it, and to put in practice any advice or suggestions given them by Mr. Gerrish.

$100,000 LOSS BY FIRE

Explosions Cause Peril at Presque Isle

PRESQUE ISLE, Me., March 10.—The business section of Presque Isle was damaged $100,000 by fire early yesterday.

Starting in the basement of Green's block on West Main street, the blaze spread rapidly and before it was controlled Green's block and Friedman's block were destroyed. The firms suffering losses are Parker Jacques, tailor; Grant's tailor shop; G. H. Freeman, hardware; A. C. Perry, insurance; Geo. F. Larabee, druggist; Mrs. M. A. McCormick, millinery; Maurice White, barber; Green Bros., clothing; Harman, bowling alley and restaurant; Dr. Frank Kilburn and Yates Shoe company. Nearly all the losses are covered by insurance.

The fire had been smoldering for hours, probably, before it was discovered. Explosions of cartridges and of dynamite in one of the burning stores made the work of the firemen dangerous. A plate glass window in a store on the opposite side of the street was broken by an explosion.

Harry M. De Long and family were asleep in a tenement over the Larabee drug store when the fire broke out, but escaped.

BANK OFFICIAL RESIGNS

Treasurer of Marlboro Institution Disappears

MARLBORO, March 10.—The mystery in the disappearance of Clifton R. Russell, treasurer of the Marlboro Cooperative bank, on Thursday, only deepened yesterday when it became known that President Eugene O. Brigham of the institution had received a special delivery letter, postmarked Boston, which is said to contain Mr. Russell's resignation, but does not disclose his present whereabouts.

Mr. Brigham reiterated that the affairs of the bank are all right, and that there is absolutely no shortage in Mr. Russell's accounts. This statement, coupled with the fact that no shareholders in the bank have as yet given any indication of demanding their money on the next monthly payment day, Thursday, strengthens the theory that he left Marlboro because of nervous prostration.

Yesterday morning thousands of cards were sent to points all over New England by Mr. Russell's friends, containing a description of the man. They will be sent to Massello bodies everywhere, and it is expected that brother Massellos will aid in the hunt. Similarly the police will send circulars to all police forces in Massachusetts.

The belief is current that someone from the office of the state bank examiner will reach Marlboro today to make an examination of the books of the bank. It has been learned that Russell was in Boston Wednesday last, that he did not return to Marlboro until the 1 p. m. train, so that it is believed that his disappearance was deliberately planned.

MISSING GIRL FOUND

Says She Was Tired of High School

BOSTON, March 10.—Charlotte Hope, the 15-year-old daughter of Frank L. Hope of Somerville, whose disappearance on Thursday mystified her friends and baffled the police, returned to her home last night. A high school chum to whom she had telephoned inquired for her into meeting him and then notified the police and her father of the meeting place.

She had been in a Mt. Auburn street boarding house in Cambridge for two nights and a day, and in a Somerville boarding house since Saturday morning, posing as a Miss Howland. The reason for her disappearance she gave as unwillingness to continue her school work. Miss Hope's return to her home was due in large part to the assistance which a 17-year-old chum in the Somerville high school, where she was a student, lent to Inspector Kennedy and Mr. Hope.

BOSTON, March 8.—Mr. W. I. Hamilton, agent of the board of education, gave out the following statement this morning:

At the suggestion of the committee on education of the legislature, we have been working during the last ten days on a draft of a bill that will provide a retirement allowance for teachers now in the service of the public schools. The bill proposed by the board of education in its report January, 1913, was drawn along basal lines so that it could be elaborated, but at that time its application was limited to teachers entering the service on and after July 1st, 1914. Following the suggestion of the committee on education, we have consulted the legislative committee of the Massachusetts Teachers'

PLUCKY WORK OF BOSTON FIREMEN

Prevented Blaze From Spreading
—Summer Street Building
Gutted by Flames

BOSTON, March 10.—Perched on a narrow fire escape, almost surrounded by flames, and in imminent danger of being overcome by smoke, members of engines 3 and 4 held their position for more than an hour during the progress of a fire in the Ferris building at 40 and 42 Summer street, early yesterday morning, preventing the fire from communicating with at least two adjacent structures. The plucky and determined work of these companies won the plaudits of brother firemen and spectators, while Chief Mullen personally praised the firemen for their efforts.

The fire caused a loss, from fire, smoke and water estimated at between $50,000 and $75,000, suffered by the owners of the building and the occupants, principally wholesale millinery and clothing merchants. The cause of the fire is unknown.

In two adjoining buildings there was a slight fire loss, but a heavy water damage. Four alarms were sounded for the fire, which for a time, especially when the flames broke through the roof, threatening the adjacent buildings and the street.

The burned building is owned by Mary E. Ferris. It is a five-story stone and brick structure, occupied on the first floor, at 40 Summer street, by the Steinwald Syndicate, a shoe concern. The entrance to the rest of the building is at 42 Summer street. The other occupants are David Banash & Son, wholesale milliners, second floor; the Eastern Millinery Supply company, third floor; Boston Hat & Bonnet company and J. Falkson & Co., wholesale clothiers, fifth floor.

The Walton restaurant occupies the first floor of 44 Summer street, while the entrance to the floors above is gained through 42 Summer street. The floor over the restaurant is occupied by George N. Talney & Co., ladies' hat-makers, while the third, fourth and fifth floors are occupied by Sullivan Brothers, clothing, as workshops and show rooms. This building is owned by Mary E. Ferris and L. R. Ferris. These two buildings are separated by a fire wall which prevented a serious spreading of the fire.

Discovery of the Fire
While several firemen had narrow escapes from injuries, only one person was hurt. Patrolman Gleason of the court square station, who discovered the fire, was thrown down a flight of stairs by an explosion. He was shaken up and cut one hand severely, but he remained at his post.

During the course of the fire a heavy iron elevator wheel was blown from the building into Bussey place, narrowly missing the firemen. The wheel was red hot.

Since the garment workers' strike Patrolman Gleason has been assigned to the section on account of rumors that some of the places might be fired by an incendiary. Early Sunday morning the officer thought there was considerable smoke in the neighborhood, and spent nearly an hour trying to find its source. Finally he succeeded in getting into the Ferris building in company with Thomas Coughlin, watchman of the New England News company, and went to the third floor. He forced open a door leading to the rooms of the Eastern Millinery Supply company, and a scintillating explosion followed. Gleason was thrown down almost a whole flight of stairs.

Coughlin was more fortunate and escaped unharmed. At this time an automatic alarm came in from the building, and this was followed by box 49, sounded by Gleason. When Engine 26 pulled up in front of the structure, only a little smoke could be seen coming from the front of the building at the third-floor windows. Members of engines 7 and 26 carried lines over the stairs to the third floor, but in the meantime at the rear in Bussey place the flames had shown through the windows and another alarm was immediately sent in. Explosions blew out all the windows on the third and fourth floors, and then the flames, having a vent, swept up and gained headway every instant.

Third and Fourth Alarm

The flames were assuming such alarming proportions that Chief Mullen ordered another alarm at 3:15 o'clock, when it appeared that the fire had spread into the rear of the building at 125 Arch street. Fifteen minutes later the flames shot through the roof and at this time the fourth alarm was sent out.

Apparatus which responded to the first two alarms fought the fire from the Bussey place side, while firemen responding to the extra alarms, were sent into the adjoining buildings with lines or onto the roofs of neighboring structures.

After thousands of gallons of water had been poured into the building for more than an hour, it was pronounced under control at 4:30 o'clock, but the all out was not sounded until nearly two hours later.

The building at 38 Summer street, occupied on the first floor by Kennedy & Co., clothiers, and by J. Peavy & Bro., wholesale clothiers, suffered a slight fire loss in the rear and some water damage. Sullivan Bros. sustained a heavy water loss, while the damage from the same source to the Walton restaurant on the street floor was placed at $5000. Smoke and water raised havoc in the establishment of Geo. N. Talney & Co., milliners.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

Lowell Opera House
Commencing tonight and for the remainder of the week, afternoon and evening, Mr. Loneragan will again be seen in the cast of the Loneragan Players, now appearing at the Opera House. The play for the current week is "Raffles," a play first presented in this country by the eminent English actor Kyrie Bellew and played by him for an entire season in New York city. In this part, Mr. Loneragan has made one of the greatest hits and it is said that his presentation of the character compares favorably with that of Mr. Bellew. "Raffles" will be presented with the full strength of the present company, all the principals including Miss Booth, Miss Stevens, Miss Haight, Miss Singleton, and Messrs. Brown, Charles Allen, Fox, Morgan, Arnold and Clark appearing in Mr. Loneragan's support. With this fine cast a performance of the $2.00 admission class may be looked for. "Raffles" is a play of sensational situations and full of exciting moments, with a pretty love story and plenty of good comedy. Written by Eugene Presby and E. W. Hornum the play is of literary merit although melodramatic to an extent. "Raffles" is a well known and respected team of the road, who for the pure delight of the stage has developed a mania for robbing his society friends, not for the gain to be derived but for the pleasure of baffling the detectives. When a "Captain Bedford," a retired detective is brought into the case the battle of wits between criminal and detective begins. The first performance of the play will be given tonight and commencing tomorrow, every afternoon and evening.

Keith's Theatre
A gingerly little affair will be presented at the B. F. Keith theatre this week, in which twenty of the brightest of youngsters will appear. In the best sense of the word, the entertainment to be given by the children will be a cabaret. The slinging with charming costumes, the comedy of the latest vintage, the scenic embellishments, novel and startling and the pleasant vaudeville features will make an act, which will very quickly jump into popular favor. Mr. Edwards has written some pretty music for the act and the staging is everything that could be desired. Barto & Clark, in the popular of comedy music and dancing called "In Sixty Flies" will run a close second to the top line act, and the Langtons, Harry Rose and Tully, in "Night on the Boulevard" will purvey one of the best pieces of spectacular and scenic novelty given since the Hamiltons showed "Superba." The musical hour, a quartet of sweet singers, who have appeared in concert, in opera and as church soloists are Messrs. DeForest, Oldfield and Fiske, Bisset and Scott, America's best male dancers are joined by the acquisition of new and fetching steps, and Maud DeLara is a physical culturist who has a superb figure and who is a splendid type of womanhood. May Archer and Billy Carr will sing and patter, and Ole Johnson is a wire performer of note. This bill is one of much strength throughout. Good seats for all performances may be secured in advance. The telephone in the box office is numbered 28.

Merrimack Square Theatre
That Miss Grace Young, Lowell's most popular and beautifully gowned actress, will score the crowning success of her career in the sketch in which she and a company of players are to be seen at the Merrimack Square theatre this week is now an assured fact. Scores of inquiries as to the time of her appearance have been asked at the box office. It is at 3:45 and 9 o'clock. The advance sale is as large as any in the history of the theatre and that many patrons who do not buy their tickets in advance will be disappointed seems certain.

In her support will be found Mr. Howard Sidney, also a local favorite. Mr. Sidney needs no introduction for Lowell theatregoers already know of his exceptional talent, while Mr. Walter Weeks, the third member comes to us with the best of recommendations. He has appeared in many of the big New York productions and is a finished actor.

In "No Questions Asked," all three will be seen to advantage. The sketch was written especially for Miss Young and affords her perhaps a little more opportunity than the others, but that has to do with the telling of the story. It concerns the tale of a woman with a rather exciting past, one into whose life has been crowded many added chapters. She goes west to forget it all and there the action of the piece takes place. It is a gripping play, clearly told and with the attending company as interpreters will be cleverly acted.

The other acts will also hold a trio of vaudeville's best outputs. In the persons of Granville & Mack, those Italian street singers, "The Mad and the Clown," as presented by Merrill & Hilton and Gene and Arthur. "The Millionaire Cowboy" will be the underline feature photo-play and will be shown in conjunction with other films of an interesting make.

Studying the Heavens
In late years, the powerful telescopes of the great astronomers have been sweeping the heavens and they have brought to man much new information about the firmament and the glories thereof. Some of this will be imparted in the People's club course lecture Wednesday evening at 8 by Professor Solon I. Bailey of Harvard observatory. As usual, the lecture will be illustrated by stereopticon, and it will be of rare interest. Everybody is invited to the hall in Runkel building and the elevator will run.

POPE MUCH IMPROVED

Physicians Say Condition is Not Alarming

ROME, March 10.—A marked improvement was noted yesterday in the condition of Pope Pius X, both the inflammation of the throat and the hoarseness being considerably diminished. The attending physicians, however, insist that he continue to rest.

The pope passed a tranquil night. Dr. Amici, who remained in an adjacent room, did not need to give his personal services to the patient until this morning. The pope then received the papal secretary of state, Cardinal Merry Del Val, and afterwards his sisters and niece, who remained with him for more than half an hour.

Dr. Marchisiani, in describing the condition of his holiness yesterday, said that there were no symptoms of gout, from which the pope has been a frequent sufferer, but that he is afflicted at the present time with only a simple bronchial affection, somewhat diffuse, but without any alarming character. He declared that there was nothing of an alarming nature whatever in the pope's indisposition, which might pass unnoticed except for the advanced age of the pontiff.

The pope himself is more anxious concerning the health of Cardinal Respighi, the vicar-general, who is seriously ill with influenza and about whom the pope frequently inquires.

THE LAND OF LABRADOR

Missionary Tells of Dr. Grenfell's Work

At the Kirk Street church last night, Mr. Jesse Halsey, a co-worker with Dr. Grenfell in the Labrador missions, gave a very interesting talk on Labrador and its people. He said that the people of that region are good Christian people.

"Talk not of snow until thou hast seen the land of Labrador." Some writers years ago, used these words and the lines were recalled by Mr. Halsey, who said that the snows would often stand 20 feet deep, so that one could walk over the tops of the trees in the woods. Nine and sometimes ten months of the year are desolate and the summers are too brief to permit the raising of vegetables.

The coming of Dr. Grenfell and his associates has worked wonders in the country, however. The real problem of the people is an economic one, and this he has been working to relieve. He has not only established hospitals and homes for orphan children, but is introducing trade schools, and teaching the fishermen how to guard against the famines that sometimes come upon them in the winter.

"We have a church at Battle Harbor with a seating capacity of perhaps half this auditorium," said Mr. Halsey, "and it is a common thing to turn away as many people as can be admitted. On Saturday boats will put in from all up and down the coast, so that their crews may attend the service. I have counted as many as a hundred of them at one time. The people are deeply religious, and will accept repeated disaster, which often leaves them penniless, with trust, philosophy and an acknowledgment of the mercy of God, as they always refer to God."

PLEASED CANTATA

From "Olivet to Calvary" Rendered at the Worthen Street Baptist Church Last Night—Large Attendance

The congregation at the Worthen Street Baptist church listened attentively to Mander's recent cantata, "From Olivet to Calvary." A large and particularly appropriate for this season, which was sung in an excellent manner last night. The soloists were Mrs. H. E. Symonds, soprano; Arthur T. Munn, tenor; and Harry C. Hanson, bass. These talented singers were ably assisted by a chorus composed of the following:

Soprano, Mrs. Chas. G. Martin, Mrs. Loree Roberts, and Mrs. Dorothy Hunt; alto, Mrs. T. Lee Taylor, Miss Laura Green, Miss Gladys Arnold and Miss Ida Woodlee; tenors, Harry Patton and Arthur Woodlee, and basses, Robert Stevenson and Donald Hanson.

In the course of the evening Rev. Dr. Frost, spoke briefly on "Love to the Uttermost."

Don't Outgrow the Bread and Milk Habit

WHEN we were kids Mother fed us on that good old-fashioned dish—bread and milk. She knew it would make us healthy and lusty, because it gives all nourishment the body needs in a form most easily digested.

As we grow older, we are apt to think of bread and milk as only for children and not as the nourishing and strengthening dish that it really is for all of us of all ages. Eat it tonight—it will prove as tasty as ever and a palatable change from heavier foods.

EAT MORE BREAD

at every meal—and between. It is the best and most nourishing food—also the most digestible when made right. To be sure of perfect bread, properly raised and containing all the food value of the wheat,

SLICING ESTIMATES

Is not an easy matter; but the slicing of bread, made by us with Fleischmann's yeast and King Arthur flour, is a pleasure which every housekeeper in Lowell should enjoy; then again, there's that satisfaction in doing it, that, those who will sit at your table will enjoy every morsel of the bread. Eat Johnston's bread; it does not cost any more and yet is much better.

WALLED IN BY FLAMES
Man was Heroically Rescued in Winthrop

WINTHROP, March 10.—Walled in by flames and prostrated by suffocating smoke, Daniel McRory, married, and living at 423 Winthrop street, was heroically rescued yesterday from a burning house by the Pleasant Park fire club, by Richard Green and Louis Leach.

In the boat with McRory at the time of the fire were Capt. W. E. Clark and Robert McLean. They led through the smoke and flames to safety and escaped with a few slight burns. McRory made an attempt to follow and was terribly burned about the face, hands and neck. His condition was reported to be improved last night at the McLean hospital and Dr. B. H. McLean stated he will recover unless complications develop.

The three owners of the house went to the craft with the intention of bolting some tar with which they planned to repair the boat. The tar was placed in a pot on the stove and in a few minutes boiled over. The next instant the room was in flames. All three tried to escape, but the heat from the fire drove them back.

Clark and McLean managed to stumble to safety. McRory staggered after them, but fell back in the burning boat overcome by smoke.

Thomas Fairclough, who was at the scene by the shrieks tried to rescue McRory, and was about to give up when Richard Green and Louis Leach, aged 19 and 23, respectively, arrived in response to the cries. Three times they attempted to penetrate the wall of fire, and on the fourth attempt succeeded.

Green pushed the window through with his hands and received a deep wound. Then with Leach he picked up the form of McRory and lifted him out through the window. The flames were rapidly creeping towards them and to escape being burned themselves they were compelled to jump through the window.

By this time the firemen arrived and after a hard fight extinguished the blaze. The damage will be $500. In the meantime Chief Higgins placed McRory in his automobile and rushed him to the hospital. His neck and face were scorched by the flames and most of the skin from his hands to his elbows was burned off. Capt. Clark's right arm was severely burned.

The black clouds of smoke which rolled into the air and hung over the nearby boats led the nearby residents to believe that they were on fire, and for a few minutes there was much excitement, as a stiff wind was blowing from the southwest.
